What, the Dole? Yes Indeed

$125,000,000 Monthly Very Poor Advertiring Who Struck First? Eve?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Do you remember when Americans used to say, "Britain may sink as low as a dole system, but none of that for proud America. The American wants nothing that savors of charity."

Now Donald R. Richberg, director of the President's executive council, says officially five million A erican families will be on relief lists before next February.

War and depression have taught this government one thing, and that is how to spend money. One hundred million Americans shuddered in unison when the Panama Canal was suggested, to cost two or three hundred millions. Now the government spends $125,000,000 per month on relief work alone, or at the rate of a Panama canal every two months, and the $125,000,000 monthly for relief is a mere petty cash item in the total national spending.

But, before shouting "reckless extravagance," ask yourself what might have happened if there had been nobody to make the government spend, and the 5,000,000 families had been told to go out and feed themselves.

Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, is not satisfied with what the government is doing and says labor, disillusioned and disappointed, is showing "a greater and greater interest in Communism."

It would be bad for imporiant labor leaders if Communism should come, for Communism has a habit of calling union leaders "betrayers of the workers," and often jails or executes them.

The administration promises to support all workers on strike, be their cause just or otherwise. "The hungry must be fed." What more could labor suggest? Perhaps that workers on strike be automotically transferred to government payrolls, with such pay as the strikers demand.

Mr. Upton Sinclair, stopping in Chicago on his way to discuss matters with the President, will have, doubtless, many suggestions for the latter. He says the President's program is "a step in the right direction, but only a beginning." Mr. Sinclair,

Rockingham Park, Sept. 4—Racing Secretary Jim Monroe has arranged a well matched card of eight races, headed by the $2500 added Laconia Handicap, a six-furlong dash, for the fourth days' sport here tomorrow afternoon.

The Laconia has attracted ten performers of the first water, with Mrs. E. McClain's Sobieha shaping up not only the probable winner, but as the safest wagering proposition on the card.

SOBIEHA finished fourth in back of Sation, Time Supply and High Glee in the Labor Day Handicap. With nothing as formidable as those who finished in front of

HORSE OWNER ACCUSED OF DOPING

Providence, Sept. 4—J. D. Mikel, owner of a string of 32 horses which have been racing at Narraganasett and Rockingham, was today placed under indefinite suspension by the Rhode Island Racing Commission for the alleged stimulation of Khamseen in the fifth race at Narraganasett Park on Aug. 24.

A saliva test was taken immediately after the race by Franklin N. Strickland, State chemist, and Dr. E. J. Cole, State veterinarian. He declared an analysis showed that it reacted to strychnine. They were of the opinion that the horse was given a nux vomica tonic before the race.

PLACED THIRD

The alleged stimulant was given to Khamseen, according to the officials of the Racing Commission, in the Mattapoisett one mile race for three year olds. It was the fifth race on the program, and was won by Vicar which paid $4.90 to win. War Letter, which paid $4.20 to place, was second, while Khamseen, paying $4.00, was third.

Under a reciprocal agreement between Rhode Island and New Hampshire, all of Mikel's horses are expected to be barred from the tracks of the Granite State. Similar action probably will be taken in other states, which are ruled over by racing commissions.

OUT OF MONEY

Mikel owns Fred Almy. This is the horse which won one day at Narraganasett and paid $19 only to rush out of the money a few days later when it was a favorite.

Mikel also owns Redress, a heavily backed favorite which ran out of the money at Rockingham last Saturday. Burning Up, Flag Time and Battling Knight.

GIRL'S SUICIDE LEAP BALKED

Annie Roper, 22-year-old brunette, of Plympton street, Cambridge, jumped into the Charles River today, fully clothed, from the railing of the Weeks Memorial Bridge near the Harvard business school. Police said it was a suicide attempt.

W. P. Bradley of Baltimore, Md., was passing in an automobile when he saw her jump. He brought his car to a stop, ran to the river bank and plunged in fully clothed.

He was aided in bringing her to shore by Patrolman Kerr of Division 11, who took her to the Cambridge Hospital in his police car.

"I do not want to live," police say she told doctors. "Nobody cares for me."

Doctors said she will recover.

In her purse, police found a note addressed to "Miss Hughes" and thanking her for "attempting to help me out."

Miss Roper lived with her sister. Dr. L. M. Schmidt said she was not in the water long enough to be greatly affected and, aside from being slightly hysterical, was suffering no ill effects from her plunge.

HUB GARMENT STRIKE LOOMS

While the country was watching the national textile strike, other smaller strikes were in progress or threatening in Boston and surrounding communities today.

Possibility of more than 1500 Boston cotton garment workers going out on strike was forecast today by Phillip Kramer, manager of the joint board of Cloak, Skirt and Dressmakers' Union at the La Grange street offices of the union.

Kramer said that he has been ordered to attend a special meeting at the Hotel New Yorker, where it is expected, decision will be made by the general executive board of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union. Kramer said

PRESIDENT TOLD KENNEDY PLANS

By Associated Press

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 4—Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the new Federal Stock Exchange Commission, today reported to President Roosevelt the commission would take over control of the vast securities market on October 1 and he added he saw no harmful effect to legitimate business in it.

En route to Washington to complete the rules and regulations, Kennedy said the vital manipulative regulations would be drafted in the next two weeks or so.

Asked by newspapmen what the effect of federal control on the market would be, Kennedy, who was himself a former trader, said: "It may cut the manipulative volume, but I can see no effect

POLICE RESCUE MILL WORKERS IN FIGHT

Fall River, Sept. 4—A small boy was run over and a woman was injured as the first fighting on the New England sector of the textile strike front broke out here this afternoon. Pickets halted three carloads of workers as they sought to enter the Parker Mill of the Berkshire Fine Spinning Association, Inc., at Jefferson and Canal streets. The boy was run down as a crowd of more than a thousand strike sympathizers closed in on the cars. A stone was hurled through a windshield, and the woman was cut by flying glass. The cars got into the mill enclosure when police reserves arrived.

Lowell, Sept. 4—Three employes of the Nashua Manufacturing Company were thrown into the Suffolk canal here this afternoon as they sought to go back to work after the lunch hour. There were no police nearby and no pickets or strike sympathizers were arrested.

Owners and mill hands both claimed the victory on the first day of the United Textile Workers' general strike, while industrial paralysis spread slowly over New England and the nation.

Operators claimed that the strike was effective in only a few isolated centers and said that it had failed as the general walkout it was meant to have been.

Union officials, on the other hand, boasted of a "glorious success," and predicted a 50 per cent tie-up by nightfall and a 90 per cent strike by Friday.

With many workers walking away from their looms after reporting in the morning, a conservative estimate placed the number now idle at 250,000, with almost half of these in New England.

It was, however, impossible to obtain accurate figures. The employers' estimate was far lower. A noon check by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers showed 85 per cent of the New England mills active in the forenoon, and claimed there were only 26,150 workers idle in Massachusetts.

The first violence, meanwhile, broke out in the South. Shortly,

STRIKE A SUCCESS, SAYS GORMAN

By International News Service

Washington, Sept. 4—"The strike is a tremendous success both in the North and the South; the South is particularly strong," Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the United Textile Workers' national strike, told reporters this morning.

He was at his headquarters early scanning reports sent out by his agents from the textile mills centers.

N. E. NOT IN SYMPATHY—SLOAN

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 4—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, today said that on the basis of telegrams it was evident "the majority of New England workers are not in sympathy with the strike movement and intend to remain by their jobs."

Sloan said he had heard from mills employing 125,000 of the 150,000 New England textile workers. Of this number, mills employing 100,000 were open and running full time, Sloan said.

after news of a flare-up at Macon, Ga., came word that the sheriff of Spartanburg County, S. C., had gone to Greer with three carloads of men armed with machine guns.

Pickets were reported "running over" national guardsmen at the Victor Mill, there. Additional troops were ordered to the scene by Governor Blackwood.

The first threat of violence in this state came at Jefferson. State troopers weer rushed to that Worcester County town when 100 workers of the Coe Manufacturing Co. joined in the strike. A like number remained at work.

In New England, places most seriously affected were New Bedford, Manchester, N. H., Fall River and Holyoke, and some smaller communities such as Maynard.

Lawrence, Lowell and Nashua, N. H., were but slightly affected.

Manchester Mills Idle; Few Go Out in R. I.

At Manchester there was 100 per cent idleness, the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company having closed down the largest mill in the world in the face of the strike order.

This success for the union, however, was offset around Pawtucket. New England strike headquarters, where less than half of the 47,000 workers were out.

Joseph A. Sylvia, UTWA strike organizer for New England, claimed that 22,000 were on strike in Rhode Island and that more than 30,000 had walked out in Connecticut.

Picketing Orderly Generally in N. E.

Peaceful picketing was in progress generally along the entire strike front, with union leaders planning mass demonstrations to make good their claim of a 50 per cent walkout by nightfall and a 90 per cent tie-up by Friday.

At Macon, Ga., however, the picketing turned into violence—the first of the strike—when an automobile containing mill officials was overturned as it sought to enter a plant gate. One of the officers was severely beaten.

Violence was in the air elsewhere and special police precautions were being taken in all mill centers. Police were matched with strikers almost man for man on the picket lines and tea gas and riot guns were in reserve in many places.

The call of the United Textile Workers was answered nearly 100 per cent in New Bedford. There 22 plants were completely shut down. Three fabric plants continued to operate.

The industry was definitely crippled in Fall River but not entirely at a standstill.

Lawrence Mills Still Go Strong

Throughout the Greater Lawrence district, mills continued to operate with nearly 100 per cent of the workers. There were but few pickets out at Lawrence.

Picketing was in progress at Lowell, but the four cotton and 10 woolen and worsted mills, employing about 12,000, were working full blast.

All employees reported for work at Nashua's two mills.

In Salem, loomfixers walked out of the sheeting mills and established picket lines but the other forces remained at work.

Silk workers were out at Manchester, Conn., but through the Rhode Island mill centers the walkout call was quite generally ignored. This was one of the big surprises of the day.

At Lawrence and throughout the Rhode Island area, unemployed appeared inside the picket lines at the mill gates, seeking to fill such jobs as should be vacated by the walkout.

Men, women and girls—and in some cases—children—appeared on the picket lines and were unmolested. "Scab" was hurled at loyal workers in some instances, but there were no clashes.

"Hit hard, if hit."

Ira Dickens of the national strike committee of the United Textile Workers, declared at Worcester that 3350 organized workers are on strike in that Worcester area, in addition to some unorganized groups.

Dickens said there are 1000 out at Worcester, 1400 at Uxbridge, 400 at East Douglas, 300 at Webster and 200 at Millbury.

Pickets Are Warned To Beware of Reds

Attempts will begin at once to organize open shop mills, he said. Pickets have been warned to shun Communist agitators and observe peaceful picketing, Dickens stated.

The khaki of national guardsmen was already in evidence around the mills of South Carolina, the troopers having been ordered out by Governor Blackwood.

The first demonstration in New England came at Danielson, Conn., where 300 weavers of the Quinebaug, Plainfield, Moosup, Jewett City and Taftville, formed a "flying squadron" to force the closing of the great Wauregan plant of the Wauregan-Quinebaug Mill, Incorporated.

Employes of the mill were greeted by cat calls from a small army of strange pickets as they sought to report for work this morning. Although there were no physical acts of violence reported, there was not a worker at his place 15 minutes after bell time.

It was then that officials of the firm announced that no further attempt would be made to operate.

Pickets Bar Way to Jobs in New Bedford

At the regular cotton and silk textile mills in New Bedford, gates were open today and power on. Several hundred non-union workers, including many women, showed up with lunch boxes and working clothes, prepared to go to their jobs as usual.

Strike pickets, however, succeeded in persuading the doubtful ones not to enter the mills. The pickets, out in force before daylight, had many girls in their ranks. No children were in evidence.

Squads of police were at each mill gate and all New Bedford officers were on emergency duty.

Sudden showers, which drenched the marching pickets, failed to drive them to cover or to dampen their enthusiasm. Few had raincoats or umbrellas, but they took their drenching cheerfully.

Strike leaders estimated that, of a total of 11,000 textile workers in New Bedford, between 8000 and 9000 were voluntarily enlisted in walkout ranks.

2000 Cling to Jobs in Tire Factories

About 2000, it was declared, were at work in the non-union tire fabric mills.

These included the Firestone, the Devon (Goodyear) and the Fiske cotton plants. The latter two, according to strike headquarters, had only a skeleton force of operatives. The Firestone mill, it was conceded, was manned 100 per cent today.

Mass meetings of strikers were scheduled today at Brooklawn and Easton's Beach, to which they were to be addressed by union leaders.

Anne Burlak, Communist "Red Flame," had an unmade an appearance at noon today, although she was reported to be in New Bedford, with relatives in her home.

Crippled, but Working in Fall River Area

The following mills, although tentatively opened in the morning failed to operate because of lack of workers:

Pierce, Page, Butler, Kendall, Dartmouth, Nashawena, Hathaway, Osborn, Potomska, Kilburn, Booth Quissett, Wamsutta, Fairhaven, Soule, Edgar Weaving, Nonquit, Old Colony Silk, Neild Silk Tabor, New Bedford Cotton, and National Silk Weaving.

More than 4000 strikers formed picket lines around the other mills, which remained operating in New Bedford.

The demonstrators were led by Mrs. Glenn Trimble of Pleasant street, a former English pro-

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—Joseph A. Sylvia, New England director of the strike, stated this afternoon that he was "very much pleased" with the strike situation in this section.

He was particularly pleased, he said, at reports from Connecticut, claiming that the mills were 98 per cent shut, with between 45,000 and 50,000 operatives on strike.

In Rhode Island, Sylvia claimed, 22,239 workers were out.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Despite closing of the Amoskeag Mills, with 12,000 out of work, pickets were stationed at 27 entrances in the plant. They were working at the picketing in two-hour shifts.

LOWELL—Only two of the 15 mills in this area were closed today, although 3000 workers—30 per cent of the total—were out here and in Billerica, Chelmsford and Dracut. The Boott and Merrimack mills were idle, when weavers, loom-fixers and spinners walked out. Picketing was general, with a strike meeting on the afternoon program.

* * *

NEW BEDFORD—With Ann Burlak, Communist Flame, planning to remain here for the duration of the strike, a definite test of Communist strength here was expected today. Interest centered in the tire mills, Devon, Fisk and Firestone, According to the union, they were the only plants to open. They employ about 4500 workers.

NASHUA, N. H.—The Nashua and Jackson Mills, normally employing 2200 workers, were open today, with U. T. W. pickets, representing 500 of the personnel, hard at work to enroll the rest of the employes in the ranks of the strikers.

Horace Broulette, union organizer, declared that less than half of the workers had gone back in some departments of the mills. He called a mass meeting for tonight to make plans for picketing the main mill gates tomorrow.

WORCESTER—Police were sent to the Bell Company and Coe Manufacturing Company plants shortly after midnight to "preserve order." Picketing began at that time.

LAWRENCE—Union strike hopes were dealt a severe blow when only about 300 responded to a "giant mass meeting" of 20,000 textile workers was called on the Common. It was predicted that the woolen mills would continue operations regardless of the strike.

ATTLEBORO—While there is no branch of the U. T. W. here, the management of the Dodgeville Finishing Company today requested a police guard to care for workers who intended to report.

* * *

PORTLAND, ME.—One small mill in Westbrook didn't open today, but as far as the strike was concerned here, there were few developments. Mill owners announced that they intended to keep open.

* * *

TAUNTON—Non-union workers at the Old Colony Manufacturing Company and at the Whittenton Manufacturing Company were expected at work today, although picketing was being led by the U. T. W. representatives.

CLINTON — Senator David I. Walsh, who is chairman of the Senate labor committee, encouraged textile strikers by declaring that any law preventing a strike would be tyranny rather than liberty.

MAYNARD — The American Woolen plant at Maynard, claimed to be the largest single woolen mill in the world, was running today with a skeleton force. Meanwhile more than 1000 striking workers, two-thirds of the mill's total number of employes, paraded about the plant, held mass meetings, and organized a picketing force. Strike leaders predicted that the mill would be unable to operate tomorrow.

FALL RIVER—Peaceful picketing started here today with an estimated 7000 out of 18,000 workers on strike. More than a dozen mills were the scene of the demonstrations, but union leaders claimed enough workers were out to cripple every mill in the city. Police watched the situation closely.

STURBRIDGE—Trouble loomed today with the announcement by the Stirbridge and Southbridge Finishing Companies that strikebreakers would be employed to take the place of textile workers who failed to report for work.

SALEM—Another crucial test for strike strength loomed here because of the Independent Sheeting Workers' refusal to join the strike. About 90 loomfixers, members of the U. T. W., were picketing the Pequot Mills.

ADAMS—Union leaders announced that the plant of the Berkshire Fine Spinning Association, Inc., employing 2900, was forced to close when the 1500 workers on the first shift walked out after reporting this morning.

* * *

NORTH ADAMS—All textile workers here, employed in two cotton and two woolen mills, reported as usual today. There is a small, independent union in one of the plants. The others are not unionized. All four employ about 1300 hands.

HOLYOKE—Almost 2000 of the 3500 mill workers here today obeyed the general strike order. There was no disorder beyond a few cat-calls for those who returned to work at the Farr Alpaca Company plant. Union officials predicted a complete tie-up tomorrow; that would mean 800 out at the William Skinner & Sons silk mill; 1200 at the two plants of the American Silk Company; 300 at the Mahaon Silk Company; 200 at the plants of the Jenney and Clinton Silk Companies, which are not yet affected, and the rest at the Farr Alpaca Company.

AUGUSTA, ME.—Mill operatives here and at Lewiston were at work the same as usual today, and strike organizers said that no action was contemplated until the workers were better organized.

OLD TOWN, ME.—The mills of the American Woolen Company and the Old Town Woolen Company opened today with shortened crews. At the former 50 of a normal 125 reported; at the latter only six of 150.

PATERSON, N. J.—U. T. W. leaders agree to peace parley with silk manufacturers before calling out 15,000 silk workers here. The Paterson Industrial Relations Board will mediate a strike if 40 per cent of the looms elsewhere are stopped.

NEW YORK—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute claims that the strike is a failure. He stated that only 31,000 of 145,000 workers in southern plants answered the strike call.

COHOES, N. Y.—Two mills were closed and six others were surrounded by pickets, as about 500 of the city's 2500 textile hands responded to the strike order.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Union leaders claim 40,000 workers have joined the textile walkout, although their claim is disputed from official quarters. Pickets were enlisting non-union workers to join strike ranks.

GASTONIA, N. C.—Hundreds of union pickets today barred the gates of the Loray plant of the Manville-Jenckes Company, largest brake lining plant in the South, and prevented entrance of the first shift of 550 men. The mill was then closed down by the management. Normally, it employs 2000 men. Eight of the other 45 mills here opened despite the strike order.

AIKEN, S. C.—The 3400 mill workers of Horse Creek Valley were back at their spindles today after an idle Labor Day. One mill, affected by a strike for months, was the only one closed.

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Heavily armed South Carolina militiamen today were patrolling the mill centers of upper South Carolina on the order of Governor Ira C. Blackwood. The troops were called out when it was reported that the strikers were ready to take "any action necessary" in close plants here and at Greer and Lyman, S. C. Only two of the 30 mills in Greenville county failed to open their gates today.

WINNSBORO, S. C.—The Winnsboro Mills, owned by the United States Rubber Company, operated with reduced forces today behind a cordon of 40 or 50 state constables, police and deputy sheriffs. The town was tense, but no trouble had developed at 8 a. m. Excitement spread through the town following reports that the company was importing Negroes to fill the places of union workers, but this could not be confirmed. Company officers declined to talk, and observers reported they had seen no unusual group of Negroes on the mill property.

WILLIMANTIC, CONN.—Employes of the Willimantic Silk Company, on strike for the last six weeks, today voted to make their walk-out part of the general textile strike and posted pickets at the plant. American Thread Company workers remained at their benches. They are not unionized.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Today was scheduled as "showdown" for the mills here. Only one, employing about 700, opened for business Labor Day. There are 25 plants in the state, so crippled by strikes that they closed for nearly seven weeks.

PHILADELPHIA — Unofficial surveys in Pennsylvania disclose that the textile strike is less than 50 per cent effective. Employes number more than 100,000 and the number made idle by the strike probably approximates 40,000.

With the survey incomplete, this ratio is reckoned on the basis of checkups at scattered and fairly representative points.

MACON, GA.—Strike sympathizers beat a mill official and overturned an automobile loaded with other officials, when it attempted to enter mill gates.

Strike Pickets See to It That New Bedford Mills Stay Shut Down

Violence Feared by U.S. in First Strike Test

Washington, Sept. 4—Apprehension over possible violence was felt today as the textile strike was put to its first big test.

National guardsmen are on duty in some sections of South Carolina, ordered out by Governor Blackwood at the request of the sheriff of Greenville County.

There was no bloodshed on the first day of the strike, but the full effect of the walkout order could not be determined because many of the mills were closed yesterday for Labor Day. Today is the first full working day in all textile centers since the call to strike was sounded.

There were varying estimates as to the effectiveness of the strike as gauged by the operation of mills in the South yesterday. Incomplete surveys of the situation in the South showed 60,000 [illegible] idle and 75,000 at work.

This was challenged by Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, who said he had received reports indicating that 100,000 operatives had responded to the strike order in sections where the Labor Day holiday was not generally observed.

On the other hand, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said reports from cotton mills in the South showed that 114,000 employes were working and 31,000 were idle. Sloan asserted the "preponderant majority" of Southern workers were not in sympathy with the strike.

Gorman said he was "more than pleased" with the result of the first day's activities and repeated his prediction that the walkout would be 50 per cent effective today and 85 to 90 per cent by Friday.

Plans were being completed in virtually all textile centers for the formation of picketing lines.

Unsuccessful thus far in all its efforts to settle the dispute over higher wages, shorter hours and union recognition, the national labor relations board was ready to renew activities if it saw an opening.

was called because the cotton manufacturers are fighting the President's modification of the code hours from 40 to 36 and increasing the workers' wages, 10 per cent.

"If the strike is ordered, 1500 workers will walk out in Boston, 800 in Fall River and about 700 in New Bedford. Throughout the country there are about 200,000 workers in the cotton industry."

Police were rushed to 716 Columbus avenue today when it was reported pickets were assaulting non-strikers reporting for work.

Jacob Silverberg, proprietor of the Ace Leather Sportswear company, told police that part of his personnel had walked out last Thursday in violation of their contract date and that when he refused to renew contracts, they began picketing.

Richard Humphrey, 767 East Fourth street, South Boston, was beaten, police say, as he tried to enter the building.

Silverberg told the police the strikers were members of the Industrial Needle Trade Union, a "left-wing" organization.

He was asked what the cut in volume might mean and replied:

"It may mea nthe loss of some brokers' fees, that's all."

Kennedy said he discussed with the President the attitude of the commissio ntowar dthe smaller exchanges throughout the country and explained:

"These will be taken care of on their individual merit."

He saw no reason why federal control would prevent either "bull or bear" swings in the market but he believed the elimination of pools would go far to end manipulation and keep the swings within natural economic bounds.

SINCLAIR TEA GUEST

Before meeting late today with Upton Sinclair, California Democratic gubernatorial nominee, Mr. Roosevelt isao conferred today with J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, presumably on railroads and the riders with other forms of transportation.

The President also talked with his former intimate, A. A. Berle, economic authority and now city councilman of New York City.

Kennedy was a luncheon guest. Sinclair was to be a guest at tea.

Martial Law at Mills Threatened in R. I.

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Providence, Sept. 4—Martial law at the least show of violence hovered over the pickets of the United Textile Workers of America today as mill owners opened defiance of the nationwide strike.

The word came from Governor F. Green, who stated that he was "keeping his eye on the ball" and was ready to order the National Guard into action at a moment's notice.

Governor Green's statement followed the rousing speech of Thomas F. McMahon, national president of the United Textile Workers of America, in which he urged the workers to "hit back if they are hit."

STRIKE STARTS SLOWLY

"The strike got under way slowly in the Blackstone Valley district with all mills in Pawtucket still operating, although with curtailed schedules.

In this city, organized members of the United Textile Workers are in the minority, but strike leaders predicted today that they would have the unorganized workers out also by tomorrow at the latest.

They based their prediction, they said, on the walkout of the loom fixers, who have no grievance or their own, but who walked out in sympathy with the other textile operatives. If looms break down they cannot be repaired.

Today there were some 3000 workers on strike in Pawtucket out of a total of about 20,000 workers. In the entire Rhode Island area, according to Joseph A. Sylvia, in charge of the Rhode Island and Connecticut strike, there were exactly 22,239 workers out at noon, out of a total of 47,000 textile workers.

The workers who remained at their posts today are unorganized, and efforts this afternoon were being made to enroll them under the United Textile Workers' banner.

RAYON MILLS WORKING

An instance of the slowness with which the strike got under way in Pawtucket was furnished at Waypoyssett Mills, rayon manufacturers. Only 80 were out here, while 1100 remained at work. As soon as the looms begin to balk, however, the workers will be compelled to suspend, strike leaders declared, as the loom-fixers are out.

Sylvia said today that he received information that in Connecticut the mills are closed 98 per cent, with only 2 per cent of the 50,000 workers remaining on the job.

STATE POLICE READY

Meanwhile, Captain John Kelley, superintendent of the Rhode Island state police, announced the readiness of his troops in the event that violence should break out at any of the plants along the Blackstone Valley.

Police Chief John Kelly of the Providence police, likewise issued what amounted to a warning that violence would not be tolerated in his jurisdiction.

Strike headquarters in Broad street, Pawtucket, issued instructions that pickets were to maintain peace. The orders added, however, the significant appendage, "unless you are attacked."

Reports had it this morning that Ann Burlack, so called "Red Flame" of other strikes in this section, had arrived for active participation in this strike area. Ann was not in evidence, however, at any of the early picketing points.

Union headquarters, through Joseph Sylvia, in charge of the strike in the New England district,

EASTERN STEAMSHIP LINES

MARQUIS' ILLNESS MAY SPOIL CONNIE'S NEW ROMANCE

SICK HUSBAND HALTS DIVORCE PLAN OF STAR

Paris, Sept. 4—Movie-Star Constance Bennett was on her way here today as fast as a crack French liner—and a perfectly swell, real-life love drama—could bring her.

Hollywood, itself, couldn't think up a better high-tension heart problem than the one that will confront Miss Bennett when her ship docks at Southampton, England, en route to Le Havre, France.

ROMANCE REPORTED

For at London, just a hop-skip-and-jump from Southampton, will be Winfield Sheehan, motion picture executive and highly-eligible gentleman, who is persistently reported to be in line for a trip to the altar with Miss Bennett as soon as the matter of a divorce from her present husband can be arranged.

But into the picture, all unexpectedly, the present husband obtruded himself today.

He is the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudray, former husband of Gloria Swanson, and he'd never, no never, do anything so uncouth as to interfere in a common way with his Miss Bennet's freedom of choice or action.

But the marquis, known as "Hank" to his intimates, couldn't help becoming a problem. He woke up today in the American hospital at Neuilly, victim of a sudden attack of "auto intoxication" or intestinal poisoning.

Unless the marquis' heart should unexpectedly weaken, "auto intoxication" isn't apt to prove fatal, but hospital doctors took no chances.

They radioed a come-quick message to Miss Bennett on her liner, and "Hank's" worries became her worry, too. In more ways than one.

Very plainly, you can't visit a husband in a hospital and tell him you'd like to arrange a divorce. You couldn't do that even if you wanted to.

And Movie Executive Sheehan, incidentally, says that he and Miss Bennett are "just friends" and never expect to be more.

ODDS FAVOR "HANK"

But, between the claim of "friendship" and the claim of poor "Hank," sick and alone at Neuilly (if you don't count those charming French Neuilly nurses) Miss Bennett must make a choice and make it soon.

Betting odds, in the American colony here, were on Miss Havoc and "Hank." But Southampton—and London and Movie Executive Sheehan are first port of call for Miss Bennett's boat.

Film Star Center of Real Life Love Drama

Marquis Henri de la Failaise, whose sudden illness is expected to delay, temporarily, at least, his wife, Constance Bennett, in her new romance with Winfield Sheehan. Very plainly, Connie couldn't ask for a divorce while her husband is sick. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

A fast-moving, high tension heart problem, that rivals anything Hollywood could think up confronts Constant Bennett, film star, today. The liner in which she is bound for Europe docks at Southampton, where her imported romance, Winfield Sheehan, motion picture executive, is staying. At the same time her husband, Marquis Henri de la Failaise de la Courdray, lies ill in a Neuilly hospital. Who will get the attention of Connie is her own problem. But Hollywood is betting on the marquis.

'HANFY' OPENS HUGE MEETING OF NAZIS

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

Nuremberg, Germany, Sept. 4—An American opened the first act of the National Socialist party congress today in Nuremburg.

While the vanguard of 325 trains rolled into the station at the rate of one every three minutes, bringing an army of 600,000 to almost triple the population of this "jewel box" of German history, Ernst Franz Sedgwick Hanfstaengl, Harvard '09, and descendant of an American Civil War general, started the show.

He received the foreign press in the German museum, and, surrounded by mediaeval relics, told his auditors that Hitler's National Socialism marked as great a period in world history as Luther's reformation.

NAZI'S WAKEN WORLD

Nazi Germany, he declared, has entered on a renaissance comparable to the renaissance that awoke the world to culture after its long sleep during the middle ages.

He adjured the journalists to give up the idea of covering the news day by day with interest only for "insignificant daily events," and bespoke the example of Goethe, who preferred to read a newspaper 20 years old in order to get the proper perspective.

The actual beginning of the Congress takes place tonight when Hitler addresses high party officials in the Rathaus.

But it is important to note that this is no party congress in the sense of a Republican or Democratic convention in America.

HITLER SOLE "BOSS"

For Hitler is insistent upon the "fuehrer principle"—that is, absolute domination of his party from above, and from his own person leaves no room for decision by anybody else, and hence there is no need for discussion.

The purpose of the party congress is declared this year to be to demonstrate "an unshakable unity" among the Nazis. Last year the most important thing that happened at the party council was Hitler's announcement that Germany does not have to fight to regain her honor on the battlefield, as she has now regained it by driving out her "traitors" at home.

HITLER KEEPS SECRET

This year what the congress would most like to hear would be Hitler's choice of "successor," who will be vice-president, vice-chancellor and successor to Hitler's power.

But it is unlikely that the congress will be told, for this is Hitler's secret, and he is showing no sign of revealing it until he is ready.

Next, however, in importance for Germany, is Hitler's announcement of what his plan is going to be to get the 10 per cent the voters in the last plebiscite to become Nazis.

The completed program of the Congress shows that Rudolph Hess, deputy Nazi party leader, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebels, Dr. Walter Darre, Minister of Food and Agriculture, and Dr. Robert Ley, head of the German Labor front, will be the principal speakers next to Hitler, who is scheduled to talk seven times.

STATE RESTS CASE AGAINST 'LITTLE EVA'

BULLETIN

By International News Service

Cooperstown, Sept. 4—The state rested its case against Eva Coo today. Seventy three witnesses had testified against the blonde defendant.

Cooperstown, N. Y., Sept. 4—Over the vigorous objections of defense counsel an oral and a signed statement by Mrs. Eva Coo, made in connection with the death of Harry Wright, her handyman, were introduced here by the state into the records of her trial for Wright's murder.

James J. Byard, chief of defense counsel, declared to the court:

"I object to the receipt of this statement into evidence because it was made in the absence of counsel (for her) after she went over 60 hours without sleep, after she was kept up there at night in the presence of officers.

"It is not what it purports to be. It is a paper prepared by the district attorney, and is not binding upon her in any way, and doesn't come within the conditions of the indictment."

He was overruled and District Attorney Ronald Grant read the many-paged document to the jury.

It told what has been told many times in the trial: That she pushed Wright in front of a car driven by Martha Cliff, who ran the machine over the body.

Whether Mrs. Coo made her statements "under duress after being kept awake for more than 36 hours" as the defense contends, will be decided by the jury when it weighs the whole question of her guilt in the murder of Wright in a lane on lonely Crumhorn Mountain the night of June 14 last.

One trooper followed another to the stand to swear that at no time did any of them "strike, slap or intimidate" the defendant during their investigation.

U. S. MUNITIONS FIRM LINKED TO BRITISH

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 4—Evidence that Sir Basil Zaharoff, European mystery man, received commissions from the Electric Boat Company of New London, Conn., from 1919 to 1929 amounting to $756,099.74 was placed before the senate munitions committee today by its chairman, Senator Nye (R-ND).

The committee was told that the Electric Boat Company and Vickers, Ltd., of England, had divided the world into exclusive areas for sale of submarines and that the two companies interchanged patents for building boats.

REVEALED BY CARSE

Henry R. Carse, president of the Electric Boat Company, first witness before the committee, testified the two concerns had an agreement covering construction of submarines.

Carse said Vickers was a customer rather than a competitor of Electric Boat.

Other testimony went into the record that the boats were sold to foreign countries and that the United States Navy used some of the basic patents owned by Electric Boat.

Carse said his company made a profit every time Vickers sold a submarine because of the use of Electric oBat patents.

LOSSES TO GERMANS

He added that his company lost about $40,000 on 400 German submarines built during the World War because of patent infringement.

Carse said his company maintained connections with one bank in London and six in New York, but none in Paris.

He explained that his company formerly held small stock in affiliated companies, including the Holland Torpedo Company, but that he knew of no other company that owned stock in Electric Boat.

Weds, Forgets Auto License

"I was so busy getting married, I forgot all about getting my auto license renewed," Theodore Fucillo, of Glendale street, Everett, informed Motorcycle Officer Joseph Monahan of Everett.

The latter stopped Fucillo for failure to observe a "stop" sign at a street intersection and discovered his license to operate had expired the week before.

"It expired the same day I got married and I never thought about it again," he told the officer.

'Dapper' Gunman Gets $60 in Bills

A "dapper" gunman entered a gas station at Church and Stuart streets, within a stone's throw of police headquarters, and robbed the manager, Henry K. Ranette, of $60 in cash. Ranette, who resides on Wentworth street, Malden, said he was about to close the station when the man entered and demanded his money.

He handed over $60 in bills, and offered him $7 in change, but the gunman refused the change, saying he only wanted the bills. He departed, missing $70 which Ranette had in his back pocket.

Theda Bara Sued for Bill of $275

Los Angeles, Sept. 4 (US)—Theda Bara, one-time screen "vamp", had her home in Beverly Hills remodeled, but neglected to pay all of the bill, according to a mechanic's lien filed against her in municipal court for $275.

Her husband, Charles J. Brabin, also is named in the complaint. The original remodelling bill was said to have been $375, for work done early this year. Gerard R. Colcord, who filed the lien, charged that only $100 has been paid.

Socialists Move to Join With Reds

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 4 (US)—Through its national executive committee, the Socialist party has taken what is conceded a long step toward uniting with the Communist party against war, Fascism, and other problems affecting workers.

In a session in Mayor Daniel W. Hoan's office, the Socialist party committee recommended the desirability of a united front with the Communists, but postponed actual negotiations until the next quarterly meeting.

Hollywood, Sept. 4—While thousands mourned, including Sally Blane and Carole Lombard, noted screen actresses, both of whom are said to have loved him, the body of Russ Columbo, whose golden voice was stilled by a corroded lead ball in an ancient dueling pistol, lay at the county morgue here awaiting an inquest.

Lost Man Kills Self in Auto

Enfield, Sept. 4—The body of Raymond Goodrich, 24, missing from his home in Belchertown for two weeks and for whom a widespread search had been made, was found in a parked car by the side of an isolated road here.

Goodrich had been shot to death with a shotgun which lay on the floor of the car. A verdict of suicide was given by the medical examiner, who stated that death evidently occurred soon after the youth disappeared on August 19.

The discovery was made by a passing motorist. The auto in which the body was found was owned by an Amherst auto dealer by whom Goodrich had been employed. Goodrich was a recent graduate of Massachusetts State College.

QUINCY YOUTH FLEES SHOTS

While Patrolmen William McIntyre and Frank Vallere of Quincy were questioning a young man whose auto was parked in front of a gasoline station at Hancock and West Squantum streets, Quincy, early this morning, he jumped into his machine and fled.

Both officers ran to their car and gave chase. They fired half a dozen shots in an attempt to stop the youth.

With his car traveling at approximately 35 miles an hour, the youth opened the door and jumped out.

The car raced across Montclair avenue at West Squantum street, crashed into a brick building, bounced back and raced into a yard on Montclair avenue, coming to a stop after tearing down the piazza of a two-story dwelling. The automobile was wrecked.

Hoover's Attack on New Deal Stirs Capital

Leaders of Both Parties See Ex-President Back in Politics Again

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

Washington, Sept. 4—Herbert Hoover's condemnation of the Roosevelt New Deal as destructive of American liberties was carefully perused today by Republicans and Democrats alike—eager to discern the former president's future political ambitions, if any.

Pres. Roosevelt

Mr. Hoover broke his silence of eighteen months with a vigorous though philosophical onslaught on the policies of his successor.

It appeared today in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, and is a part of a book which will appear later under his signature.

The politicians sought in vain for something between the lines that would indicate Mr. Hoover's personal program. His criticism of the New Deal was strictly impersonal, so far as they could gather.

He contented himself simply with deploring the trend of the times, particularly the concentration of authority in the hands of the executive.

OPPOSES REGIMENTATION

He carefully refrained from mentioning Mr. Roosevelt by name, but he did rather pointedly enumerate the powers that his successor has gathered unto himself, and expressed grave concern because of it.

This concentration of power in the White House, Mr. Hoover said, was the "first step in economic regimentation." He added:

"Powers once delegated," he said, "are bound to be used, for one step drives to another. The whole thesis behind this program is the very theory that man is but the pawn of the state. It is a usurpation of the primary liberties of man, by government.

"And, it is a vast casualty to liberty if it shall be continued."

MIXED EMOTIONS

Mr. Hoover's first literary effort since his retirement was received with mixed emotions in Washington.

Republican regulars, most of them cautiously anti-new deal, approved it in principle, although generally they asked to be excused from comment.

Privately, they declared the former president has put his finger on the weak spot in the new deal. But there were differences of opinion as to whether he had struck a keynote for the campaign this fall which the Republicans can use to advantage.

The Republican irregulars, most of them ardently new deal, merely smiled and said little.

Not so the Democrats. The Hoover dissertation aroused in Democratic breasts varying degrees of resentment and ridicule.

QUERIED BY BYRNS

Representative Joe Byrns of Tennessee, Democratic leader of the House, and probably its next speaker said:

Recalling the dark days between 1929 and 1933, Byrns asked:

"What does Mr. Hoover mean by liberty?"

"Does he mean liberty for the unscrupulous banker to play fast and loose with his depositor's money, cause banks to fail by the hundreds and bring misery and suffering to millions?

"Does he mean liberty for the unscrupulous dealer in securities to unload worthless stock upon the unsuspecting public?

"Does he mean liberty for the selfish ten per cent of an industry to sweat its labor, engage in cut-throat competition, and thus lower the whole standard of American living?

"Does he mean liberty for agriculture to go on headlessly piling up huge surpluses, indigestible, unsalable, and thus bankrupt the American agriculture down into the bottomless pit of bankruptcy?

"Does he mean liberty for unconscionable utilities to go on gouging forever the consumers of this country?

Herbert Hoover

It was Mr. Hoover's listing of the alphabetical recovery agencies and his pointed criticism of them that provoked most of the Democratic resentment.

HOOVER CREATED RFC

Byrns pointed out that Mr. Hoover himself instituted the RFC, which put the government in business on rather a grand scale. He also emphasized that many of the powers which Mr. Roosevelt now has, Mr. Hoover asked Congress for and did not get. He mentioned, among others, the power to fix tariff rates and negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements.

Summed up, the Democratic answer to the former President might be expressed as:

"Sour Grapes."

From a thousand stumps throughout the country in the next two months, the Republicans will quote Mr. Hoover's philosophy of liberalism, as now expressed, and from another thousand stumps the Democrats will answer.

Wittingly or not, Mr. Hoover has thrust himself into the campaign. Of that much, Washington is certain.

3 HELD IN DOPE, KIDNAP PLOT BY U. S.

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 4—The kidnaping of a French seaman by an international gang of smugglers and his torture during a month of captivity were disclosed by federal investigators today after government agents had arrested two men and a woman.

The seaman, William Rosen, or Guillamare Rozen, identified one of the prisoners as the leader of the gang. He identified the man's wife as the woman who cooked for him during his imprisonment.

Investigators said Rosen, a seaman on the French liner Champlain, was abducted because he threw a package into the sea, believing it to contain potash. Instead it held narcotics valued at 40,000 franc ($2640.)

The arrests were made in a raid early today on the apartment where Rosen said he was held captive. Those seized were identified as Salvatore Mancuso, 28; his wife, Nellie, 25, and Dominick Gelferno, 31, also of Brooklyn. Rosen was unable to identify Gulferno, agents said. All were charged with kidnaping and conspiracy.

Rosen, 35, short and slightly built, appeared at police headquarters with his wrists bruised by the ropes with which he had been tied day and night and his forehead scarred by lighted cigarettes.

Rosen told the investigators that after the liner docked, he said, a man met him and told him a friend wanted to see him. Rosen got into the stranger's automobile and was carried off.

MRS. ANNA SAGE

THEODORE BENTZ

Theodore Bentz and Mrs. Anna Sage, "Woman in Red," above, bared important information on the Dillinger gang hideout in Chicago and their protectors there, it was revealed. DILLINGER GANG DEN BARED

By Universal Service

Chicago, Sept. 4—Sensational disclosures, revealing just how and by whom John Dillinger and his outlaw band were shielded in Chicago, were foreseen here when it was revealed that Theodore Bentz, arrested in Portland, Me., weeks ago a member of the gang, had broken the underworld code and "squealed."

Held secretly at Grand Haven, Mich., for 10 days, Bentz, made a 21 page confession to federal agents just before Louis Piquett, attorney, and six others, were arrested here last week, on a charge of harboring Dillinger and the also-slain Homer Van Meter.

Revelation that Bentz was one of the gang's trusted members came when he confessed that he was with Dillinger, Van Meter, George "Baby Face" Nelson and the others at the Little Bohemia, Wis., resort when the gang shot its way out of a federal trap, killing Agent W. Carter Baum.

United States Attorney Fleming at South Bend said he could not discuss the confession, but Assistant Police Chief P. Leo Berner said he saw a copy of it and that Bentz, besides admitting he was in Wisconsin, made it plain that the gang was being "well hidden" in Chicago.

Gorman Is Too Busy to Know Own Address

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 4—Francis J. Gorman, diminutive leader of the nation's general textile strike, is such a busy man these days that he doesn't know where he lives.

His home is in Providence, but his family has moved to another home in that city since he last saw them and he has not received the new address.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 4 (US)—William Ross, Minneapolis broker, has been held by Japanese police for four days for questioning, it was disclosed here today.

Miceli will be brought here if police believe his story, Norman said.

BACK BAY GIRL 'AMAZED' AS BRIDAL IS CALLED OFF

Marriage plans of Miss Mary Chester Guild, of Beacon street, Back Bay, reached an abrupt and mysterious climax today when it was revealed that her wedding to Thomas W. McCue, Boston investment banker, had been called off.

News of the cancelled marriage came only a few days after the engagement had been formally announced at a dinner party at the Eastern Yacht Club in Marblehead.

First intimation that Miss Guild received of the broken engagement was when a reporter called her saying that McCue had informed him that the wedding plans had been given up. Miss Guild answered.

"Why, I am amazed. Mr. McCue called on me tonight. He asked me if I had been accepting invitations from other men to go to dances. I replied that I had and that seemed to disturb him.

"But, he admitted that I had a perfect right to do this, and went home as I supposed in a happy frame of mind.

"However, the wedding is off now permanently."

According to McCue, he believed that Miss Guild was interested in another man besides himself. He said:

"I do not believe she wishes to marry me, even though we took out marriage intentions. As a result of the conversation I had with her, I wish to have the announcement of our engagement cancelled."

Miss Guild was previously engaged to George Harrington, Boston real estate broker. This romance nearly ended in tragedy when she was found unconscious in the bath-tub of her hotel, a few hours before the marriage ceremony was to begin.

Boston, Massachusetts

September 4, 1934

An Important Announcement to all Edison Customers

Beginning September 1, 1934, in conformity with the order of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, we discontinued the practice of furnishing lamp bulbs free of charge to our customers.

This change of policy . . . coming as it does after forty-eight years of free lamp service . . . also involves a change of responsibility. The obligation of maintaining good lighting standards now passes largely into the hands of the individual customer.

Good light and good lamps are not expensive. Poor light damages the eyesight, both of children and adults. Lamps of inferior quality burn out quickly and are wasteful of electric current. Accordingly, for your own protection, when you buy lamps either from us or from any reliable dealer, we make the following recommendations:

Remember these 3 points

1 Buy only lamps of standard quality, bearing the trade-mark of an American manufacturer whose name and reputation you recognize.

2 To insure maximum lighting efficiency as well as freedom from premature burnouts and early blackening of bulbs — use only lamps marked "115 V" (volts).

3 Be sure to purchase lamps of a size adequate for your needs — and thus avoid eyestrain and fatigue.

Expert Lighting Service

RESIDENTIAL CUSTOMERS — If in doubt at any time regarding the size of lamp to use in your home, or the type of lighting fixture you need, call our Home Service Division and we will send a lighting specialist to assist you, without charge.

COMMERCIAL CUSTOMERS — Commercial and industrial concerns of all kinds are invited to call upon the services of our Illuminating Engineering Division, without charge or obligation. Each member of this staff is technically trained in the specialized uses of light for increasing sales and improving factory efficiency.

nominated for governor of California by the largest primary vote ever cast for a Democratic candidate, is not exactly a good walking advertisement for his adopted state. He calls his program "EPIC," meaning "End Poverty in California," and tells Chicago crowds that might be expected to buy California real estate later, "people in California are tired of starving."

Mr. Sinclair is not keeping step with California Chamber of Commerce that tells the world California is THE happy land.

This writer can testify that eggs can be bought in California below 20 cents a dozen, broilers three for a dollar, 100 oranges for 25 cents, lemons even cheaper, and this writer has been selling, from his Mohave desert ranch, many carloads of highest grade alfalfa "rabbit hay" with the blue blossoms thick in the hay for $8 a ton baled. Losing about that amount on every ton sold. You need have no coal bills in California, anything you plant will grow. Rents are amazingly reasonable. He who starves in California would starve in Rasselas' happy valley.

Chambers of commerce will tell Mr. Sinclair that his kind of advertising might keep new industries with new jobs to offer OUT of California, and that is a poor way to end starvation, even the imaginary kind.

Two Americans, seven Japanese were kidnaped by Chinese bandits after wrecking a train. Japan sent fliers, killed 25 bandits, rescued the prisoners.

Northern strikers, of the "hard-boiled, he-man type," may cry "crisis," reading of a strike meeting in North Carolina that turned into a religious camp meeting with prayers and loud cries of "amen." Mr. Lawrence, eloquent striker leader, telling his followers "trust in God, for He is with us, as He is with all those whose cause is just."

Scoffers may remember that Cromwell also prayed and took the Lord for his partner on all occasions, and what he did to privilege and power was a good deal. He is one man that never lost a battle, he cut off the king's head and his enemies feared him long after he was dead.

The eloquent Mr. Lawrence told his strikers "the first strike on record was the strike in which Moses led the children of Israel out of slavery from Egypt." The first strike, some would say, is described by Milton, telling of Lucifer and his attempt to rule in Heaven. Others would say that Eve was the first striker, bored, with no one but Adam to talk to, delighted to meet the serpent, although she was sorry later and wished she had not struck against the rule concerning the forbidden tree.

GUNS GUARDING MILL WORKERS IN SOUTH

By Associated Press

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 4—Additional thousands of workers answered the call this morning as the general textile strike gained momentum throughout the Carolinas.

The union made it greatest gains at Durnham, N. C., where the strike as described as "100 per cent effective" by newspaper observers. Seven plants of the Erwin chain there were closed, with 4500 walking out. The Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company and the Golden Belt Company, employing 3300, opened their gates, but no workers attempted to pierce the picket lines.

The strike also spread into the Durham Hosiery Mill, which was not included in the general strike call. Pickets persuaded such a large number of workers to leave their posts that all but the full-fashioned department were forced to close.

MANY MILLS SHUT

Many plants continued to operate without molestation, but a large proportion of those which remained closed yesterday for the Labor holiday—an unprecedented action in the South—felt the strength of the United Textile Workers Union this morning.

In Mecklenburg County (Charlotte) approximately 3500, who yesterday were "on holiday," today became integral parts of the strike.

Similar conditions prevailed in Gaston county, N. C., center of the world's combed yarn industry. Approximately 25,000 workers were idle there, as mills which observed yesterday's holiday were not able to resume operations.

GUARD AGAINST RIOTS

The Loray plant of the Manville-Jenckes Company, scene of months of bloody rioting in 1929, closed a few minutes after opening its gates when its 50 first shift workers were unable to pierce picket lines. Loray employs 800.

W. M. McKinvie, superintendent, said the plant would remain closed indefinitely to avoid repetition of trouble such as that in 1929.

The South Carolina situation, which last night developed to the point that National Guardsmen were sent to three mill centers, was quiet but tense today. Sixteen hundred employes of the Pelzer Mills joined the walkout, forcing a complete closedown.

announced that Aun would not be tolerated in this section.

Said Sylvia:

WILL BALK COMMUNISTS

"This battle is being waged by legitimate labor in the hope of obtaining legitimate wages and legitimate conditions. Union members will balk any efforts of Communists to take over the strike."

Sylvia promised that there would be no need for martial law as far as his organization was concerned. He pointed out, however, that the strikers were ready to protect themselves in the event violence came their way.

NEW ENGLAND HARD HIT BY BIG TEXTILE STRIKE

fessor at Wheaton College. There were 25 mills closed.

In Maine, the Waterville area was seriously affected and police stood by with gas guns, prepared for trouble.

The textile industry in Fall River appeared to be crippled, but not entirely at a standstill.

The cotton division of the American Printing Company was operating, but the remainder of the huge plant, one of the largest in the city, employing 2,800, was closed.

Pickets Out Full Force at All Mills

The Firestone Mills, however, where 1500 employes belong to a company union, was reported as operating with a full force.

All the mills appeared to be picketed. Police were on guard at the gates of each and kept the pickets moving, but did not interfere otherwise. Union officials claimed that at the American Printing Company plant the day workers, whose operations were an important part of the industry were out on strike and that the shutdown of the entire plant would be affected within a few days.

A group of especially selected pickets, led personally by Marino Bishop, head of the Fall River Textile Council of the United Textile Workers of America, were operating as a flying squadron, going from mill to mill in automobiles, and exhorting and spurring on picketers on duty.

A number of children were hovering on the outskirts of many of the picket lines, but apparently they were there merely out of curiosity. However, in a number of instances they cried out: "look at the scabs," and hurled other insults as the mills opened.

At the Kerr Mills of the American Thread Co., employing about 1400, the management reported their plants were operating in full.

The Arkwright No. 2 opened its gates, but the management ordered a shutdown when only 12 per cent of the 1,000 employees reported for duty.

The Sagamore, Border City, and Foster Spinning Co. mills, employing a total of more than 2000, made no attempt to open. Their managers, however, were quoted as saying they would open tomorrow.

Textile mills throughout the Greater Lawrence district threw open their gates, with employes reporting nearly 100 per cent.

Not a single picket was early in evidence at any of the 25 mills in Greater Lawrence, and the police department, operating on regular shifts, without any extra men or reserves called out, reported all quiet.

There are about 25,000 mill workers in 12 big mills in greater Lawrence, and about 17,000 of them are employed, mostly on part time of three or four days a week. Of that number, approximately 5000 were scheduled to report for work today, and a survey showed them reporting nearly 100 per cent.

At the Wood mill, scene of most of the trouble in 1933, the early shift went through the gates without disturbance, and the late shift walked in an hour and a half later.

Salem Workers Do Not Heed Call

In Salem, the management of the Pequot Mills said that about 95 per cent of those employed on the early shift, which comprises about 1250 employes, reported for work when the plant opened.

Mill officials said that about 90 members of the Loomfixers Union, Local 30, U. T. W., and about 60 members of Local 33, U. T. W., and a few others were the only ones remaining out.

A majority of employes of the plant are members of an independent union with no national affiliations.

The plant was picketed this morning by more than 100 pickets, but there was no indication of violence. A small detail of police was on duty.

The management has announced it would not engage strike breakers to take the places of those who remained out.

Mill officials and police in Lowell reported that virtually the entire working forces of four cotton and 10 woolen and worsted mills in the city proper reported for work when the mill gates opened this morning. These plants employ about 12,000. Police said the plants were picketed but the picketers were orderly and there were no signs of trouble.

Other N. H. Workers Report for Jobs

The Amoskeag Manufacturing Company plant, Manchester, the largest cotton mill in the country, was closed with approximately 9000 operatives remaining in their homes.

Pickets were placed by the United Textile Workers of America local cotton thread manufacturing plants, at the deserted mill gates and a strong police guard was on duty throughout the mill area.

Officials of Nashua N. H., mills and Jackson mills of the Nashua Manufacturing Co., employing about 2200, said virtually all employes reported for work.

Police said there were a few pickets on hand, but those who went though the mill gates were unmolested. Police said they planned to arrest out-of-town pickeers if any were imported to Nashua.

A quick survey swing throughout the Rhode Island textile centers as mill gates swung open, revealed that few if any of the workers were heeding the general walkout call.

A checkup of the plants throughout the state showed that operatives were reporting for work nearly 100 per cent, and hundreds of unemployed hands were swarming about the gates, in expectancy of vacancies caused by the strike.

Police at Pawtucket and Central Falls, where most of the mills are located reported everything quiet. A steady drizzle fell. State Police, patrolling the outlying mill districts, reported not a single disturbance.

Other Mills Run With Full Crews

The Royal Mill, in West Warwick, was running full blast, with many additional hands appying for work. In Ant'ony, 400 employes in the Coventry Mills went to work with others looking for work.

A quick survey of the Weybosset Mill, branch of the American Woolen Company, showed that nearly all of the 700 employes were at their places.

At Portland, the Westbrook Weaving Company, rayon and silk manufacturers, closed today when its 104 employes failed to appear for work. Silvio Veeney, manager, said the plant would remain closed indefinitely.

Fall River Weaver Killed by Auto

Fall River, Sept. 4—James A. Loggins, 49 believed by police to be an itinerant weaver, was injured fatally when struck by an auto here.

JURY BATTLE OPENS IN CO-ED DEATH TRIAL

By Associated Press

Norman, Okla., Sept. 4—Neal Myers, University of Oklahoma student, awaited selection of a jury today in his trial for the murder of Miss Marian Mills, 19-year-old campus beauty queen.

Death of Miss Mills, the daughter of a university professor, was attributed to an alleged criminal operation.

Ten special deputy sheriffs were assigned to keep order in a throng expected to exceed the estimated 400 capacity of the little courtroom of Judge Tom Barrett.

A venire of 75 men, mostly farmers, was drawn. Women are not permitted to serve on Oklahoma juries.

To the jury, a choice of three verdicts—death, life imprisonment, or acquittal—was expected to be given. It was considered improbable that prosecutors would ask the death penalty.

Chief witness for the State will be Mrs. Hazel Brown, a fraternity house cook and a confidante of the young couple, at whose home the girl died, July 10.

MOONEY BARRED FROM FUNERAL

San Francisco, Sept. 4—Tom Mooney will not be permitted to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Mary Mooney, if the matter is left for San Quentin Prison authorities to decide, Warden James B. Holohan says.

The prison Warden said Mooney, convicted and serving a life sentence for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing of 1916, will be allowed certain privileges but added:

"I have no authority to permit a prisoner to attend a funeral, even of his own mother."

Members of the Mooney family said, however, they will carry the request for permission to attend the funeral of the 86-year-old mother before Acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam. Mrs. Mooney died with her wish to see her son exonerated of the crime unfulfilled.

Secret Orders Bare Communist Plots in N. E. Mill Centers

This is the fifth of a series of articles strikingly portraying the menace of Communism in New England.

These articles, particularly timely in view of the efforts of radicals seeking to wrest control of the textile strike from the American Federation of Labor, are based upon authentic, secret communications of the Communist party.

These communications are in the possession of the Boston Evening American, disclosing the revolutionary drive of the Communists for control of industry and government.

Copyright, 1934, by the Boston Evening American

Boston is headquarters of the Communist drive for control of the textile situation in the East.

In fact, Boston is head quarters of a Communist drive to seize control of all New England industry.

Secret communications of the Communist party—which are now in possession of the Boston Evening American—are amazing in their disclosure of the systematically thorough and proficient manner in which the radicals have proceeded in their underground burrowing for control.

They are likewise startling in their evidence of the undercover progress made.

Communications of the party leaders reveal that the nation has been divided into districts, districts into sections and sections into units for the concentration drive in which scores of small organizations, openly or secretly backed by Communists, are participating.

Communists Supported By 10 Boston Groups

In addition to the headquarters of the Communist party for the New England district, located at 919 Washington street, no less than 10 Boston organizations receiving the support of the Communists have been located. These are listed as follows:

"Unemployed Council, International Labor Defense, Trade Union Unity League, John Reed Club, American League Against War and Fascism, Victims of German Fascism, Marine Workers Industrial Union, Food Workers Industrial Union, Negro League of Struggle, Workers' School, Young Communist League (headquarters and branch)."

Secret Orders Map Red Organization

Of the 10 lesser organizations, the most important in the Communist efforts are the Workers' School, where Communist agitators are trained, and the Young Communist League, which is the most active in the group.

The manner in which the district leaders lay out the organization work for the various sections and concentration units is best illustrated by secret orders issued in early April, as follows:

"Section I—The establishment of the Marine Union on the Waterfront, concentrating the S. S. Co. dock, and of the Unemployed Council in the North End.

"Section 2—To establish the Unemployed Council in one neighborhood in Roxbury, one in Dorchester, and to concentrate in one shop in Dorchester.

"Section 3—Concentration upon one shoe shop in Chelsea and the building of the opposition movement in the Chelsea local.

"Section 4—The building of the textile union in Providence and Pawtucket, concentration mill.

Haverhill Shops Named in Code

"Section 5—Amoskeag Mill in Manchester; unemployed work in Claremont, N. H., and the development of the struggles of the farmers.

"Section 6—One steel mill in Worcester and concentration on one neighborhood for unemployed work.

"Section 7—Haverhill concentration shop to be the C. (Code indicated) and, secondarily, the CI.

"Section 8—One large shop in Lynn and the building of the opposition in the Lynn local.

"Section 9—One neighborhood for unemployed work and the struggle for Negro rights."

Those are enough to illustrate the manner in which concentration was focused upon a particular issue according to the varying needs in the sections.

Following these sectional orders is the blanket order:

"Every section committee shall review in detail at least once a month the work in each concentration point.

"The section and district leadership must check up on the comrades politically responsible for the concentration points, and particularly for the recruiting for the party from these points and on the development of new cadres from among the workers there."

As an illustration of the manner in which the district headquarters of the Communists in Boston has delegated specific tasks to its many units, this order effecting the Trade Union Unity League (as issued last April) may be used:

"The establishment of a functioning Trade Union Unity League Council and apparatus is essential as the only means by which the unions in the lighter industries (as apart from textiles and shoes) can be given leadership.

"Those unions, furniture, needle, dye house, marker workers, etc., are taking on mass membership and leading strikes as a result of the tremendous urge of the workers on every hand to organize and fight.

"The Communists in the leadership of those unions have as their most urgent tasks the building of the TUUL Council, the establishment of correct relationship with the TUUL, the recruiting for the party and establishment of functioning party fractions.

"At the same time the TUUL leadership and the party must struggle relentlessly against the opportunist practises appearing in these unions, not hesitating when necessary to appeal directly to the workers over the heads of the leaders."

By Communism burrows.

Further disclosures of Communist's amazing control plan in Ne England will be made in tomorrow's article.)

Fight Bullets, Strikers Told

"Even if you are shot down—fight back for your liberty. If you don't, it will be because we are cowardly and afraid. Your house is your castle and you must fight to protect it.

"This strike is not a movement to the left or a movement to the right. It is a movement that seeks simple justice.

"We have in back of us a mill tant church, one that will fight for us to the last leg. The American Federation of Labor is also behind us. Shall we fail or rise?"

—Excerpt from speech of Thomas F. McMahon, national president of the U. T. W. at Providence.

UNIONS ASKED TO AID ALIENS

By Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 4—Trade unionists were urged by Socialists today to withhold co-operation with the government in the deportation of alien Communists.

The appeal came from the Socialist party's national executive committee which, in a statement addressed to trade unionists, said that such co-operation would mean "torture and in some cases, death for the deported."

Although declaring that the Socialists were "sharply opposed to many things that the Communist party has done in the trade unions," the statement, issued last night, pleaded with the Unionists "not to cooperate in such a despotic policy of retaliation because of real or fancied wrongs."

Recounting a request that trade unions cooperate with the government in deporting alien Communists made recently by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, the committee declared:

"Every labor hater in the nation will be only too glad to point to your action against Communists as justification for a similar policy against you."

Railway Strike Looms in Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 4 (AP)—The threat of a street car transportation tieup in Chicago grew stronger today.

Some 1500 members of the Amalgamated Union of Street Railway operators voted last night to give union officials authority "to take such measures as in their judgment may be necessary to insure success" of the bus drivers' strike.

WALSH TO JOIN COLE FORCES ON STUMP

With the primary but 17 days off, and organization work practically completed, siege guns were being unlimbered today by former Mayor James M. Curley and Gen. Charles H. Cole in the Democratic contest for Governor.

Senator David I. Walsh, one of Cole's sponsors at the Worcester convention, is scheduled to speak at a Cole rally in Brockton tomorrow night. The senior senator has made only one public appearance for Cole since the convention. That was at the clam bake to Mayor Joseph Hurley of Fall River, now candidate for lieutenant governor.

With Walsh actively in the battle, former Lieutenant Governor Edward P. Barry of Jamaica Plain, who is challenging Walsh for renomination, is expected to go into action.

START FINAL TOUR

General Cole and former Mayor Curley start on a final rally tour which will take them into every section of the state.

Tonight the General will speak at Greenfield, Northampton, Easthampton and Ware.

High praise for the part organized labor has played in the framing of progressing laws was sounded by Curley at a meeting of the Lawrence Central Labor Association. The former mayor declared:

"Substantially every progressive measure upon federal and state statute books may be traced not to homes of culture, but to those of the toilers."

CURLEY LAUDS LABOR

"With out the contribution of organized labor the pledge of equal opportunity would be but empty substance and meaningless.

"It has stood as a bulwark for justice against the greed and brutality of pelf, power and plunder, fattening upon the women, children and men sweated in industry."

Curley asserted that the hosts of labor have now much to look forward to as President Roosevelt has announced that it is his purpose to secure enactment of a law for the control and distribution of the products created by the labor of the American people. He then continued:

"The adoption of this law should result in permanency of employment for the workers and solve the age old problem of unemployment."

COLE MAKES PLEDGE

But he warned his hearers that the success of the President's social and economic recovery programs depend in large measure on the election of public officials who can be relied upon to aid rather than retard these great reforms.

General Cole, in a statement, pledged himself, if elected governor, to give his support to labor in its fight for adequate wages and better working conditions.

He expressed the belief that the interests of labor will be "best protected and more quickly achieved under the program of President Roosevelt's New Deal."

Mathew Creehan Associates Meet

Mathew L. Creehan Associates, of Charlestown, will meet tonight in their headquarters at the corner of Bunker Hill and Lexington streets to discuss plans for the completion of a drive to elect Mathew L. Creehan to the House of Representatives from Ward 2. The meeting will be directed by Melvin MacCuloy of Elm street, Charlestown.

Creehan is a graduate of Boston College with the class of 1932, and is now a student in the Harvard Law School.

For the last five years he has been a life guard at Dewey Beach, Charlestown, where he has many rescues to his credit, and is an idol among the youth and parents of the district.

HAY FEVER

We never have recommended the use of Salicon for Hay Fever in our circulars and labels. Nevertheless, each season for years we have received a number of letters from persons who have tried Salicon for Hay Fever and who have been benefited or relieved.

Some have suggested that we should tell the public about this but we have hesitated to do it because we know of some cases where it has been tried without giving any relief whatever.

There is no known specific for Hay Fever—each sufferer seems to have his own method or means for getting such relief as he can.

If you have Hay Fever and have found no relief—it might be wise to try Salicon. It won't hurt you and judging from what some have said there is a possibility it may help you.

NEW RADIO 'CRIME CLUB' SERIES TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Sleuth Sketches Starting Fall Schedule

By N. F. T.

Dialing devotees of detective doings have apparently missed the "Crime Club" episodes on the ether waves through the summer. They will therefore be likely to welcome the return of "Spencer Dean" and "Dan Cassidy" to the round summer-tum setting. This popular program (WBZ) puts out again following a summer layoff, beginning at 4 o'clock tonight. It continues the subsequent half hour.

This above mentioned and sparkling Stewart Sterling story in serial form, features Edward Reese or "Spencer Dean" to the loud-speaker patrons. John McBride figures prominently as the ever alert aid, cast as "Dan Cassidy" quite like he was last winter when the sleuthing sketches were suspended for the Spring and Summer months.

PRESIDENTIAL PROBLEMS

First of a new network five time weekly offering, puts our American First Lady in the "public spotlight again, discussing the question "When Will a Woman Become President?" and being aired (WBZ) between 9:30 and 9:45 P. M. Mrs. Roosevelt holds a vigorous viewpoint in connection with the topic of her talk, what's more, the wife of the President plans to thoroughly outline her idea of certain qualifications to be possessed by the woman who might finally become Chief Executrix.

* * *

Annette Hanshaw, the peppy and pretty "Showboat" program personality, has just resigned. It seems that the "Carnival" crowd, where Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Orchestra hold forth, have snatched Annette from the big coffee concern and away from "Capt'n Henry" who gives her such great introductions. Just another trend, as referred to here in this space only a day or so ago. Hearing the celebrated Rudy Vallee hour through WNAC or any competing facilities, wouldn't be surprising at all. No kidding, either!

RUG BURGLARS IN $20,000 HAUL

Springfield, Sept. 4—Burglars, with expert knowledge of oriental rugs and antique silverware, took merchandise valued at $20,000 from the State street show-rooms of Pilgian Brothers, Inc., members of the firm discovered today.

Entry was made mysteriously some time during the week-end, according to police. No doors were forced.

Authorities believed today that the break was made with stolen or reproduced keys or that some confederate of the burglars concealed himself within the shop before closing time Saturday. Only the most costly rugs and silverware were taken.

FRIED LIVER and BACON with Broiled Banana, Rolls and Butter

From 4 to 9 P. M.

"I surely am partial to FRIED LIVER, BACON and a BROILED BANANA"

. . . WHEN OUR PEOPLE BROUGHT to my desk a sample of the feature banana "special" for Tuesday, I imagine my face lighted up, for it caught me at a time I was hungry for my lunch, . . . and it so happens that I am one of the many thousands who are particularly fond of fried liver.

• "Fried liver and bacon . . . with a delicious broiled banana" . . . somehow had a captivating ring to it, and I knew it would taste good, way down to the very last bite.

• And I was not disappointed . . . in fact, I waxed enthusiastic at once, for the banana gave an added flavor to one of the most popular menus on the Waldorf list.

• Our dessert banana special is also delicious . . . a fresh peach and banana shortcake covered with sweet whipped cream. If you have never eaten this combination of bananas and peaches I guarantee you have a treat in store for yourself.

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

In the first real exercise of his power since he took office nine months ago, City Censor Herbert S. McNary has ordered an entire scene eliminated from the most famous musical revue of recent years, "As Thousands Cheer." The scene is the one called "Society Wedding of the Season," and Clifton Webb and Dorothy Stone are the principals. City Censor McNary saw the show in New York and has given notice that the sketch must be played in Boston.

Dorothy Stone

If the city censor considers this bit of travesty too violent a dose for Boston, he perhaps out of line to report the stage proceedings as they happen. But Peter Arno publishes a cartoon some time ago which may have furnished the inspiration for the scene, and their was no uprising on the part of irate citizenry.

The scene shows a young society bridegroom (Clifton Webb) and his fair young bride (Dorothy Stone). They are asleep. The telephone rings. Mr. Webb answers. "Oh," he says, "I had forgotten." Then he turns to Miss Stone. He says: "Get up. This is our wedding day." Thereupon, the two do a beautiful dance symbolic of nuptial bliss, or something, ending with a mimic ceremony. They stand, in a penitent attitude, before an imaginary minister. Mr. Webb says: "I do." Miss Stone says "I do." Then looking at each other and prancing into the opening steps of off-to-Buffalo, they say to each other: "We have!" There are only six lines of dialogue in the dance furnishes the climax of a lavish scene which begins in front of St. Thomas Church. Thirty girls and boys, in full wedding costume, sing the opening of the travesty.

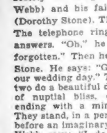
In New York, "Society Wedding of the Season" was one of the most solid hits among the succession of hilarious skits, beautiful song numbers, and exquisite stage effects. There is a possibility that denial will be made that any such action has been taken by the city censor. Certainly when the show's producers read here of the ukase there will be a determined effort to save the scene for the Boston showing. Rerouting a massive revue which through 30 weeks of playing in New York has reached the clockwork precision that comes only with constant repetition, is a terrific task for the time intervening between the revue's opening next Monday night.



Clifton Webb

This corner is taking no issue with the city censor in his judgment. The facts, however, are as you have read them above. It is safe to predict that there will be a rush toward the box of Sam H. Harris, Irving Berlin, Moss Hart and maybe Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, Oh, I forgot. Sam Harris and Mr. Berlin were Tammany boys.

WARNERS PLAN FILM INSURANCE -:- ANN HARDING STARS AT KEITH'S

Warren William Given Leading Role in 'Not On Your Life'; RKO Studios Busy

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 4—Very amusingly Warners will produce a story of a big insurance company, which may or may not be Lloyds. The name of the play is "Not on Your Life," and it's an original by Isabel Dawn and Boyce De Gaw. Hal Wallis, who bought the story, was intrigued with the idea of a big gambler who decides to run an insurance company in the same way a gambler makes books.

Warren William, who plays the suave crook in the same ingratiating manner that has made William Powell such a favorite, will have the lead. The picture will not in any way resemble the big Loyd special which is being made by a British company. This is more the story of a gambler.

Plenty happening on the RKO lot what with Merian Cooper back in harness and Pandro Berman also at the helm. This studio has been quiet for so long that it's simply elegant to have news stories posted on the fence. Martha Sleeper was today signed for the leading role opposite Richard Dix in "Wings in the Dark." Miss Sleeper, who really got off to a flying start when she played on the stage in "Dinner at Eight," hasn't done very much since her romantic marriage to Hardie Albright. Not that her marriage has a thing to do with it but that Martha just hasn't been given good roles. Phil Rosen directs.

Louella O. Parsons

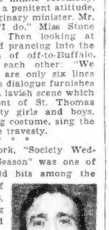
Blonde Madeleine Carroll is all set to come back to Hollywood. The only thing that stands in her way is the promise to make a British film but Madeleine is relying on her luck and she expects to get free from her British entanglement. That being the case we'll be seeing her play opposite Ronald Colman in "Clive of India." Miss Carroll proved in "The World Moves On" that she has not only beauty but definite talent and Darryl Zanuck feels she'd be especially good in the Colman picture.

* * *

"Now I'm a Lady" ought to be enough of a public declaration that Mae West is going straight — I mean on the screen. Paramount was so intrigued with the title that they promptly bought it for their buxom queen. It is authored by Marion Morgan and George Dowell and in it Mae really goes social. An American actress, she marries a millionaire and goes abroad to crash English society. We are told it will be funny but not naughty.



Madeline Carroll

Chatter in Hollywood

Ruth Chatterton was one of the first to wish her former husband, Ralph Forbes, every happiness in his marriage to pretty Heather Angel. In fact, it's a relief in a way, to Ruth, who from the day she and the blonde Englishman said "adieu" in the divorce courts, has been constantly accused of being ready to remarry him. Despite Ruth's steady denials and her statements that she and Ralph were just good friends, no one believed her. Just goes to show that the world may sometimes guess wrong.

It's not always the topnotch stars who get the breaks. Once in a while the character actor gets his big moment. There is Alan Hale who has played more villains in Hollywood than probably any other actor. Alan who is a nice quiet family man who wouldn't step on a flower, is always the old meanie. He must be good because he has gotten a lifetime job like of which you have never heard. Through Edington and Vincent he has just been signed on a five-year contract at RKO. He is to play Rob Dow in "The Little Minister," Porthos in "The Three Musketeers" with Francis Lederer. He just finished "Great Expectations" and is now at work in "Babbitt" and will later be seen in "The Good Fairy" and "The Great Ziegfeld." Aside from that Mr. Hale hasn't a thing to do.

King Vidor in the London Daily Mail gives an interview in which he says:

"I have come here to learn. England is the background of literature, culture and good taste. You are making fine films without infringing the dictates of decency and modesty. I want to make English pictures. I have done so in Hollywood but the atmosphere is missing. So I have come to study English conditions and characteristics. I am going to select suitable English stories and then make films of them in England. We in Hollywood can learn a lot from England."

Am I laffing? Are you with me, after reading King Vidor's interview given in the London Mail?

'Paris Nights' Howard Opener

Burlesque at the Old Howard is under way with "Paris Nights," one of the most elaborate shows on the independent circuit inaugurating this new season.

Wilma Horner

Headed by that versatile comedian, Billy Arlington, "Paris Nights" has a chorus of pretty girls, with many favorites among the principals in the big revue, Eddie Lloyd and Sea Bee Hayworth add their clever comedy, and Wilma Horner and Joan Collette, both popular entertainers with Howard patrons, are featured in the big cast. Others whose dancing and singing contribute to the smart opening show are Marie Andrews, Nora Murray, Lucky Darlin, Condo and Allen and Bandelegs.

In addition to the pretentious burlesque bill, the Howard features on the screen "Headline Shooter," with William Gargan and Frances Dee, and "The Great Jasper," with Richard Dix and Edna May Oliver.

Hitler Film Purports to Show Conditions in New Germany

Conditions in Germany since the ascendency of Hitler are revealed on the screen at Tremont Temple in Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.'s film, "Hitler's Reign of Terror."

Mr. Vanderbilt and the noted news commentator and Hearst feature writer, Edwin C. Hill, supply the informal narrative. There are authentic photographs of the news reel type of events on riotous days in central European cities, and some interviews frankly re-made from Mr. Vanderbilt's accurate and descriptive notes.

Perhaps the most realistic and the most shocking of the activities which the film shows are the great public bonfires of proscribed books of Jewish authorship or sympathies, the placarding and military picketing of Jewish-owned business establishments, the painful sight of an elderly gentleman trudging through the streets barefooted surrounded by armed Nazis, and tagged with a sign reading, "I will never again complain to the police."

Barbed wire and machine guns in public squares, mob rioting, extensive forced military drill and parading are also shown, with Mr. Hill asking the meaning of these martial manoeuvres, and Mr. Vanderbilt recounting the rumblings and undercurrents of war.

The Vanderbilt interviews with Hitler himself, with the ex-Kaiser and his sons are reproduced in detail. Actual shots of Doorn set the background for the now famous remark of the Wilhelm that if ever he returns to Germany it will be in a wooden box.

"Hitler's Reign of Terror" is a certain extent casts a searchlight on Germany. Some of the

Minsky Season Opens at Park

Direct from an engagement at the Republic theater in New York, "Cocktails of 1934," opened the new season set for burlesque at the Park theater yesterday.

Sunya Slane

Headlining the pretentious musical revue are Nora Ford, Sunya Slane, Jack Grinman and Sidney and Billie Fields, with a supporting cast of more than 30.

New and elaborate renovations at the Park both back and front stage allow the presentation of the newest and biggest of the shows of the Supreme Circuit, and the Minsky brothers announce that the opening bill is the forerunner of a season of shows that are unsurpassed on the burlesque wheel.

Other featured favorites on the program are Edna Mae, Jerri Sargent, Dagmar the Exotic, Jack Rosen, Les Royce, Charles Mokoroff, Renaud and Stacia, the Three Dancing Demons and Jackie Wilson.

The doors open at 9:30 each morning, with three shows scheduled daily and a gala midnight performance on Friday.

Ash-Blonde Actress Splendid in "The Fountain," New Drama

By JOYCE DANA

In a part that is a perfect compliment to her distinctive type, Ann Harding stars in "The Fountain," screen version of the Charles Morgan novel, featured at the Keith Memorial, along with one of the outstanding short screen subjects of the season, "La Cucaracha."

The transcription to the screen of the story has been, barring minor incidents lopped off by the censors' shears, remarkably faithful.

An outline of the plot reveals little of the depth and beauty of the story. Lewis Alison, an English officer and gentleman, is interned at Enkendahl in Holland, the prisoner-guest of the Baron von Leyden. Here he renews his childhood friendship with Julie, the baron's stepdaughter, whose titled husband is in active service at the German front. Their friendship leads surely and swiftly to love, a love that is strengthened by shared ideals and dreams. Long before Count Rupert returns hopelessly invalided, they have decided to tell him the truth.

Yet even Julie's courage is unequal to the task. Only the will to live, only her nearness, keeps Rupert from death. Confronted with the truth, he refuses to believe it, yet the knowledge that his broken body lies in the path of their happiness in the end brings the kind release of death.

The serene and self-assured Miss Harding, accustomed to playing the heavy martyr, has a role in which she and her admirers may revel. More believable and less self-consciously noble is Brian Aherne as Lewis, a completely charming person whose acting is far above the leading man average. Paul Lukas does a masterly piece of work as Rupert, Sara Haden is excellent as the unhappy spinster, the always dependable Jean Hersholt turns in another skilled portrait as the Baron.

"La Cucaracha," (The Cockroach), is the most significant and by all odds the most beautiful color film ever produced. Based on the rhythmic Mexican folk song and dance, the film has been designed by Robert Edmond Jones. Steffi Duna, Don Alvarado and Paul Porraze are the principal actors. The exquisite coloring may have been dreamed of, but it has never before been achieved on the screen.

STRIKE CALLED 'GREAT FOLLY' BY MANSFIELD

A wide divergence in opinion upon the textile strike and other labor disturbances was in evidence today among labor and political leaders of Massachusetts.

Labor Day utterances of Mayor Mansfield, Senator David I. Walsh, Congressman William P. Connery Jr., of Lynn and James T. Moriarty, past state president of the A. F. of L., revealed varied different attitudes upon labor difficulties.

Mayor Mansfield, speaking at the Boston Central Labor Union program on Boston Common, termed strikes at this time "the height of folly." He said:

"I cannot agree with a policy which tends to bring about paralyzing strikes in industries which after five years of devastating depression are just beginning to get upon their feet.

$40 TAX RATE SEEN

"Public opinion does not approve of strikes in times like these.

"I earnestly urge labor leaders everywhere to consider the temper of the public and the condition of the country and of the people before engaging in a bitter industrial conflict.

"I urge every worker to be satisfied with a little less than they might demand under union regulations, and not to rock the boat."

The mayor added that unless the legislature in extraordinary session restores pay cuts to municipal employes the city faces a $40 tax rate for 1935.

CONNERY BACKS LABOR

Strong opposition to Mayor Mansfield's views were voiced by Congressman Connery. He declared:

"The mayor asks the workman to be patient, to go easy. I say Mayor Mansfield is wrong. The workingman has been patient 150 years.

"If industries had adopted the 30-hour week, as they promised President Hoover, all the idle workers would have gone back to work and industries would be making so much money that they would be moving in, not out.

"If you went into the mills of Lawrence and other New England cities, you would not blame the workers for striking. I hope they win in the strike, and if I can help them, I will.

WALSH OPTIMISTIC

Senator Walsh at a Worcester Labor Day observance was more optimistic about the future. He declared that national recovery measures have changed the whole industrial outlook. He said:

"There is a new spirit abroad in the land. It is one of optimism and confidence. Doubt and fear are naturally found among some of the ultra conservatives.

"But there can be no sound and lasting prosperity if the unemployed are not employed and their jobs and their living made secure by ample and continuous purchasing power with which to buy the products of American industry and agriculture."

W. R. Hearst Discusses the Nomination of Upton Sinclair in California

The following interview with William Randolph Hearst was published in the New York Times of Sunday, Sept. 2. The statement was radioed to the Times from Bad Nauheim, Germany, where the correspondent of the Times asked Mr. Hearst for his comment on the nomination of Upton Sinclair for Governor of California on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Hearst said:

I THINK Mr. Upton Sinclair is a perfectly well-meaning man but a wholly impractical theorist. He is but a visionary, with a record of utter failure in the application of his theories. He is a speculator in politics, an inventor in economics and an adventurer in sociology. He is a dreamer rather than a thinker.

He is an unbalanced reformer whose remedies, like his writings, are pure fiction. Still he is typical of the attitude of Americans today and he stands a very fair chance of being elected.

Personally I am not disturbed about the situation. If children are determined to play with fire, perhaps the best thing is to allow them to get their fingers good and well burned. They will remember that lesson.

If Americans want to play with communism, socialism, bolshevism and other fanciful experiments and discredited failures, if they are anxious to follow the lot of the patched and Pied Pipers of politics to their own undoing, I say let them do it. It's their funeral. At least, when they have counted the costs we may be sure that they will not want to repeat the experiment.

Americans used to be considered sound, sensible, clear-headed and practical people, but nowadays, like a lot of thoughtless children, they are following Pied Pipers in Federal politics, Pied Pipers in local politics, Pied Pipers in education, Pied Pipers in religion and Pied Pipers in economics and traipsing after every irresponsible adventurer with a penny whistle to play and a seductive song to sing.

AND the worst of the situation is that they are following these fantastic figures in exactly the opposite direction to which they should go if they want to extricate themselves from their difficulties.

To be sure, the Pied Pipers are playing pleasing tunes and singing alluring melodies full of fine and vain promises after the manner of their motley kind from time immemorial. These irresponsibles can always tell others what to do, although they cannot do it themselves. As Elbert Hubbard said of professors, "They know so many things which are not so."

But if Americans have not lost their common sense and balance of judgment entirely, they will stop following sweet singers and smooth talkers some day and sit down calmly and reason out a few things for themselves.

What made their country great? Was it Communism, Socialism, Despotism? Or was it sound democracy? What made their country rich—and it is rich today, the richest country on God's blessed earth? Was it merely theory and demagogic oratory or just plain practical industry?

We bewail the depression period. Well, we have been through one great war in which we needlessly wasted our money. We have been through a period of reckless speculation in which we stupidly lost our money. Our troubles are largely of our own creation, and we Americans are not the kind of people who "can dish it out but cannot take it," are we?

We have been in wars and depressions before, and we have come through them handsomely by the exercise of courage and common sense—by precepts of sound democracy and encouragement of stable industry. We have always known enough to build business. Let us know that much now.

WE have always known enough to develop and diversify our industry. We have always known that protection and encouragement of American industry meant the maintenance of the American standard of living. Why not know that much now?

We have always known that active and expansive industries meant ample and liberal employment. We have always known that good business and good wages meant good markets for produce and producers. Why forget those simple truths now? Can the Pied Piper completely mislead us?

We have always known that the politicians can do nothing but talk and that the wealth of the country and the wages of the country and the markets of the country are created by the business of the country. We can be today as sensible and as practical, as thoughtful and thrifty, as we have always been.

We should stop wasting the people's money in futile and fantastic experiments. We should stop piling up huge debts for ourselves and our children to struggle under for years to come. We should stop these heavy and hampering taxations which burden business and support parasitic politicians.

WE should end once and for all the NRA and its nonsensical, ridiculous, asinine interference with national and legitimate industrial development. We should understand that extravagant employment by governments is and must be only temporary and that permanent employment must come from industrial development and increased and expanded business activity.

Until we do realize these elemental facts we'll go from bad to worse, and, while doing so, sink deeper and deeper into the mire of debt.

Remove restrictions on industry. Lighten the burden of business. Reduce taxation. Abolish political bureaucracy and all governmental extravagance. Stop following after strange gods. Stop visionary innovations and impractical experiments. Cultivate the virtues of our fathers, follow in their proven paths, practice courage and common sense. Realize that what made us prosperous and happy once can make us prosperous and happy again.

That is what we Americans ought to do. But it is probably not what we will do. Children who are playing with fire seldom stop until they have burned the house down—or at least made the bed uncomfortable for themselves and others.

Five Guilty, Are Freed in Cranberry Strike War

Carver, Sept. 4—While striking cranberry pickers planed new moves today to complete the tie-up of bogs in Plymouth, Middleboro, Wareham, and Carver, five strike pickets, arrested on charges of trespass, were released without penalty in Middleboro district court.

The defendants were George Peace, Albert Barry, and Joseph L. Cruse, all of New Bedford, and Manuel Garcia and Peter Monteiro of Wareham.

They were found guilty, but judge Daniel Sullivan put their cases on file.

Picketing at principal bogs of the Cape area was to be resumed today, strike leaders said.

MEETING CALLED

A mass meeting of strikers, now claiming to number 5000, was called at noon at union hall, Carver.

Meantime, harvesting of the cranberry crop was practically at a standstill, police reported. More than 200 special officers, sworn in to keep peace in the face of rumblings of war between strikers and berry pickers, patroled the district.

Bog workers, allegedly brought in from distant localities to serve as strike breakers, numbered less than 100 today, strike leaders said. They were the target of gibes and of quit-work pleas, but had not been subject to intimidation.

An airplane flew over bogs, signalling non-union workers to leave their tasks.

Strikers are seeking an increase in hourly pay from 15 and 25 cents to 75 cents. They also want an increase in pay per basket from 15 cents and 20 cents to 35 cents.

Owners, with a short crop this year and a high market price, face an emergency if the strike continues.

Schools Open in 3 Middlesex Towns

The Acton High School had an enrolment of 150 pupils. The grammar schools in Acton will open next Monday. Carlisle grammar schools opened today. High school students of that town will begin their studies tomorrow in the Concord High School.

Alleged theft of 50 cents brought Henry E. Murphy of Quincy Point, a three-months jail sentence in Quincy district court today.

The sentence was suspended for a year on Murphy's promise of good behavior.

Complaint in the case was brought by Mrs. Joseph F. Sargent, of Florence street, Quincy. She said that Murphy, after losing his job as collector for a business house, made the 50-cent collection at her home.

Amoskeag Hits Strike as Pact Violation

Employees of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. of Manchester, N. H., are on strike without cause and in violation of agreement existing between company officials and officials of the United Textile Workers, the company declared in a statement today.

The mills, largest in the country, were closed today by the strike with aresulting weekly wage loss of approximately $120,000. Said the statement

"The existing original collective bargaining agreement signed by the president and vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, and the treasurer of this company July 8, 1933, in the presence of the Right Reverend John B. Peterson, Bishop of Manchester, requires the peaceful adjustment of all differences, by negotiation and arbitration, and prohibits strikes, lockouts and stoppages.

INFLICTS GREAT LOSS

"The present strike, called without resorting to these agreed and orderly methods of adjustment, needlessly inflicts great loss on the employes, the company and the citizens of Manchester."

The four grievances on which the United Textile Workers issued the strike call are non-existent in the Amoskeag mills, the statement pointed out.

Amoskeag will welcome a neutral body to investigate and report on the work-load and tasks and standard conditions as compared with competing mills, and the statement

EMPLOYMENT INCREASED

Against the union claim that the volumn of employment has steadily declined since the cotton textile code became effective, Amoskeag officials cited an average increase of 1719 employes, or 42 per cent, since the code became operative

Against a claim of declining weekly earnings under the code, the company cited an average weekly increase of 26 per cent since July 17, 1933, date of the code operation, despite a reduction in working hours from 54 to 40. Amoskeag wages average higher than other comparable mills, it was claimed.

Against the charge that workers have been discharged for union affiliation, Amoskeag pointed out that the right to organize and bargain has never been denied the employes and the union officials had praised Amoskeag's attitude in the regard

BAY STATERS VOTE ALE PREFERENCE

POLL BY CAMERA REPORTER J. J. KENNEDY reveals big lead for fully aged Ale

WHAT THEY SAID

50% MORE AGING CAPACITY THAN ANY OTHER ALE BREWERY IN THE STATE—THINK OF THAT! —says Paul M. Collins, stock broker, Brookline, Mass. "That means something to a fellow like myself who likes his ale fully aged," says Mr. Collins. "It stands to reason you can't be sure of getting fully aged ale unless a brewery has plenty of aging capacity. You bet I'd rather have Harvard."

I'VE NEVER MET A MAN WHO DOES NOT LIKE FULLY AGED ALE BETTER Relates Andrew J. Shaughnessy, Restaurateur, Brookline, Mass. "I'll bet I've introduced Harvard Ale to at least a dozen of my friends. It's funny to watch some of them the first time they taste Harvard. They just sort of begin beaming all over. As if they never had real ale before and I guess that's right—because Harvard is the only ale I've found that has the genuine fully aged flavor."

THUMBS DOWN ON GREEN ALE IS WHAT I SAY—Declares Miss Mary Glennon, Forest Hills, Boston. "To my way of thinking," states Miss Glennon, "green ale just isn't the real thing. Fully aged does for ale what proper ripening does for an apple. It makes it taste right. It makes it wholesome for you. You bet I never ask for anything but Harvard."

IT TAKES A FULLY AGED ALE TO CLICK WITH US NEW ENGLANDERS—says Miss Harriet M. Collins, telephone operator, Back Bay, Boston. "I guess New Englanders are just born with a taste for aged ale. That's why a lot of us feir disappointed with the early repeal ales. They lacked the real fully aged flavor. It took Harvard to give us that."

WHERE TO GET IT—To make sure of always getting genuine fully-aged Harvard Ale, look for this sign and tell 'em, "I'd rather have Harvard."

With the Bridesmaids' Gowns Safely Out of Reach at Avis Arden, Madge Turns Her Attention to the Wedding Guests

CHAPTER 131

Helen Brixton slapped Lillian on the shoulder gleefully, as she announced her determination to be "lire-woman for the fair Avis" on the morrow, adding that the girl would wear the bridesmaid's gown of our selection or that Lillian herself would be the famed Mr. Mantalini's "demd damp unpleasant body."

"Atta girl!" Helena laughed "And I wish you joy of our job. Now, I suppose the next thing is to get these gowns on hangers."

"Right here," I said, with a little housewifely pride, for it is one of my housekeeping fetishes to see that my own closets and those of my guest rooms are provided with plenty of padded and delicately scented hangers for gowns. "I think I would better improvise cases for them out of some sheets, they are so delicate."

"I'll get them," Lillian said, skimming through the door, and returning in a few seconds with sheets from the linen closet. These we hurriedly pinned into protective cases for the dresses.

UNDER LOCK AND KEY

"Now" Lillian said, when Helena had hung up her own gown. "We'll make sure the sanctity of this treasure chest is not violated

She went over to the closet, turned the key in the lock, extracted it and, with the aid of a safety pin and a piece of string, made a guard for it.

"There," she said merrily, "Pin that inside your dress, and don't you dare leave it off your person, unless you're locking or unlocking that door, until the ceremony's over."

"By my haildome, I swear it," Helena said, laughing, and fastening the key inside her bodice Then we went downstairs to the big living room, where the young people were gathered.

"The best chatterers of the magpie family would hide their heads in defeat if they could hear that bunch," Lillian said, as we neared the doorway, "but aren't they a sight for any kind of eyes?"

We agreed with her, as we paused in the doorway and looked at Mary Marion and Carolyn, each of a different type of beauty, with heads bent over a chest of flat silver, the gift of Dr. Braithwaite and his wife to their idolized niece. I knew that the pathetic love of thwarted parenthood had gone into this munificent gift to the orphan daughter of Harriet Braithewaite's sister, and I was glad that Harriet and her distinguished surgeon husband came into the living room as the girls were exclaiming in sincere admiration their gift.

Carolyn looked over at them with saucy, mischievous eyes

"Will anybody tell me," she demanded, "why the Fates couldn't have handed me an uncle and aunt like you people? I've only some step-aunts, and if I get a plated bread tray from them I'll be lucky. Oh, boy! Oh, boy! Oh, boy! Isn't this the missing piece in the jig-saw, though."

"It's the whole puzzle," Marion chimed in, "with diamond and pearl trimmings. I've never seen anything so lovely."

THE WEDDING GIFT

"We're so glad you like it," Harriet Braithwaite said, with a smile of genuine pleasure tempered her usual statelines "Mary already has told us that she and Noel are pleased."

"You're making me lady-like and refined," Mary said gaily, slipping an arm around her aunt's waist and reaching over her other hand to draw her big uncle into the circle. "Pleased is altogether too mild But I've exhausted all my verbs and adjectives already. I can only tell both you again how much I thank you and love you."

Dr. Braithwaite, gazing, noting the effects of his long lingys, put his arms around the girl's shoulders and kissed her upturned face.

"Dear little daughter" I heard him murmur, and felt my throat constrict with poignant sympathy for the tragedy that was his and his devoted wife's.

A TRAGIC DECISION

For I knew, because of a confidence which my haughty, stately sister-in-law had once given me when her world appeared to be falling around her that Harriet Braithwaite, in her early married life, had made the decision to sacrifice her own strong desire for motherhood because she felt that her brilliant husband in his arduous exacting career needed every bit of "mothering" that she had in her power to give.

Her husband had approved and accepted her decision, and for all their years of life together, Harriet Braithwaite had cushioned the corners for her brilliant husband in a fashion excelled by few wife in the world. Indeed, he frequently said that he never could have achieved his great success without her care and aid.

Then, in their late middle age, had come the trial which came so near to being a tragedy. I wondered if my memories of that old time had been so strong as to give a subconscious call to Katherine, who came quietly into the room just as Edwin Braithwaite raised his eyes, after kissing Mary's upturned face, and looked at her.

Hobble Skirts and Peg-Tops Are Back

By DOROTHY ROE

THE PEG-TOP, hobble-skirt age is upon us again, they do say.

At least the designers are making determined efforts in that direction, and although it will probably be a couple of seasons before women give up their hip reducing exercises the sign is posted that a change is bound to come.

A few dinner gowns here and there already illustrate the peg-top trend, with draperies about the hips and a slim, straight line from knee to hem.

So slim are many of the new skirts, as a matter of fact, that the slit skirt of current fashion is a necessity

For those who dont care for hip drapery just yet, there is the avalanche of tunics which have the same effect

The peplum flared tunic is one of the pets of fashion just now, anywhere between the hip line and the knees with a slit, or and narrow skirt below.

The tunic may be worn from dawn to dawn this season You see it in sports costumes, in afternoon dresses and in evening gowns.

The tunic suit is prominent the belted, flitted jacket extending almost to the knees, the skirt straight and slit.

The gorgeous metallic tunic is tops for wear over a black satin or velvet skirt for dinner

And the sequined tunic for formal wear is winning its share of the applause

So maybe, in another year or two, America will emerge from the reducing girdle era

Utilizing Entries for Suit Establishment

By Josephine Culbertson

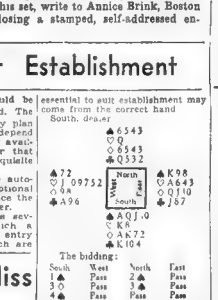
[This is one of a series of articles in which Mrs. Culbertson explains certain principles of the new Culbertson System of Play. The examples and rules given by Mrs. Culbertson in these articles have never been published heretofore and are exclusive in Boston in the Boston Evening American]

By means of various kinds of plays the Declarer tends to establish the maximum number of tricks possible from the cards he and the Dummy hold. Almost every play requires that the lead should be made by one particular hand. The establishment of practically any plan of play must therefore depend upon sufficient entries being available to each hand In order that any hand may take the requisite number of leads

Although these entries are automatic at other times exceptional circumstances required to place the lead in one hand or the other.

The hand below illustrates several of the various ways which a player utilizes every possible entry in order that the leads which are essential to suit establishment may come from the correct hand

South, dealer



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3◇	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opens the heart Jack, which East wins with the Ace. East returns the Queen of diamonds and South is in the lead with the King South can now see that his contract depends upon his losing at the most two more tricks. At least one trick must be lost in clubs, and at least one trick in diamonds, so that the spade finesse must be successful if the contract is to be made.

The first and surest entry le a ruffing entry. South must not be led another finesse taken. Now before leading out East's last trump South must be careful lest his last trump, which furnishes a stopper for the adverse hearts, be forced out before all his tricks are established

South must give up his d'amond trick while Dummy retains a trump to act as an auxiliary heart stopper. So South next leads the diamond Ace and then the diamond seven, which East's Queen wins. West declaring a heart. East takes off Dummy a last trump by leading the spade King, and when South wins with the Ace he can re-enter Dummy with the fourth diamond, and finesse through East's Jack of clubs. West wins with the club Ace, and South has remaining the established King and the trump, so he loses only three tricks.

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

Things a Young Woman Should Know

By Sheilah Graham

THAT men are all shy . . .

Their line may be bold, natural or timid, but the two former are a cloak to hide the latter. When they meet a young woman for the first time, the tongues of most of them long to go on strike

That they don't care to be called good looking half as much as they like being labelled "smart." That the reason the majority of them drink is because liquor washes away their inhibitions and induces a pleasant "Big Shot" sensation

That they are almost as vain as women regarding the concealment of their ages. They lop off the years with sublime indifference to them, drink gray hair and wrinkles. (I know one man who has been forty-five for the last eight years).

That they respect purity in a woman, but may joke about her leiness, they may sneer at what they call her inhibitions, but deep in their hearts they admire her and take a long look at her when marrying time comes around.

That they are flattered when a pretty or even a homely girl calls them frequently, but they automatically mark them down—especially if she latter—as 50 per cent less attractive.

That they prefer to do their own datemaking

That they dislike responsibility. They spend their lives trying to wriggle out of the tasks civilization—and marriage—impose on them. That is why immediately after a wedding a wife, they all vow "never again." (Luckily for us females, the male is a forgetful animal)

That they are home loving. A porch or a fireside, a book, a smoke, home-cooked food and a small quantity, but big quality of congenial companionship, is their approximate idea of Paradise.

That any woman can twist the toughest of them round one strand of her hair, if she knows how to take him in the right way. "Oh, you big strong man," and "my, how clever you are" have expanded more male chests than all the gymnasiums rolled together.

That they say they are firmly convinced all the girls they take places will feel insulted unless they maul them at some part or all of the outing. That they are hypocrites when they blame her for what they had intended doing with or without encouragement.

That nine hundred and ninety-nine in every thousand hate the thought of getting married. Like Mae West, they think marriage is a great institution, but again like Mae West, they do not think they are ready for an institution.

Tell Child Why and What of Food

By LISA GRENELLE

Children are all more reasonable than most of us adults appear to think. Give a child a sound and intelligent explanation for any treatment duty asked of him and the chances are nine to one he will perform it without a murmur. But naturally they resent being forced to eat this or that distasteful to them without ever a reason why.

The average woman feels her child what the child nutrition specialist tells her is good for them. Of course, she knows vaguely that there are vitamins in all good food and that vitamins are somehow very good for children, but that's as far as you can expect her to go, what with having to spend half the day in the kitchen anyway fussing over the children's food.

You can force Jimmie to eat his spinach now that he is directly under your eye and your supervision—but he will refuse it the minute he leaves home—unless his own reasoning power is satisfied that spinach is necessary for his growth and his protection.

Why not have the story of food—diet and its reasons given in school? Let every child absorb, along with the multiplication table and history, the reason why he should eat spinach, what different food does to him, what the combination of foods do to him, how they tend to benefit or destroy him.

Gay Scotch Plaids

There's a bit of Scotch about many of this year's woolen dresses. The authentic plaids of Scottish highland clans have been searched out and copied—red, grey and white plaid, blue and white, and blue, grey and green being some of these lovely plaids. These striking dresses are often accented with dark velvetaens, or sometimes contrast a plain blouse with a plaid skirt.

This is the time of the year to make that change that you have desired so long. You will find the choicest apartments, homes and rooms listed today and every day in the Rental columns of the American and Advertiser.

Buttermilk Bleach

Question: Can you tell me the cause of the dark brown "liver-patches" that cover my face and chin? Is there anything that will bleach them?

R. D., Everett.

Answer: Moth patches or liver spots are encouraged by the sun, so try to avoid too much sunlight on an unprotected skin. They may also be due to internal derangements that need treatment inside and out. Take the juice of a lemon in a glass of hot water the first thing in the morning. Be sure that your elimination is good, and keep the blood well circulated by practicing deep breathing. Get all the fresh air and exercise possible

Creame containing lemon juice are bleaching in effect. Home remedies are buttermilk, tomato or lemon juice, peroxide diluted three parts. A pack made with buttermilk mixed to a paste with cornmeal is whitening in effect.

Four O'Clock Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me as to the correct way for a man and a woman going to dress at a four o'clock church wedding. C.

For an afternoon church wedding a woman wears her most formal day clothes. For a summer wedding she might wear a chiffon ensemble, dress and jacket or cape, or a light-weight silk dress . . . something like that, with a dressy hat and light-weight gloves, one of the new weaves, perhaps, so comfortable in summer.

A man wears if he dresses formally, cutaway coat and dark-striped trousers, in winter and spring and fall, and, if he is dressing informally, a dark business suit. (And one sees far more business suits, 'tis true, even at formal weddings than one does formal day clothes!) For a summer wedding the man usually wears either a business suit, or, if the wedding is not in town, he would probably wear flannel trousers and dark coat.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper at a bridge party given for a bride-to-be for the winner of the prize to give her prize to the bride-to-be? F

If the winner of the prize especially wishes to make the generous gesture, it is proper for her to do so. But it isn't at all necessary or called-for, since the prize, logically speaking, belongs to the person who has won it

Gracious Relief for Wearied Bodies

By Juliet Shelby

HOW WOULD you like to have a health and beauty bath such as you get in Central Europe?

There, at the famous Spa, for the price of a pretty penny, a doctor would prescribe for you "die Kur"—Pine Bath to you. Daily you would include it in your health routine and come away chipper as anything and feeling the pine baths alone compensated your long trip

But you are not going to Europe this year, so take your pine baths at home. Throw a generous handful of rich pine crystals into your tub and let the hot water run on them. A pungent, woody vapor envelops you, and so it should. For these bath crystals are actually a bind of authentic pine oils and extracts from the Austrian Tyrol with specific herbs which have long been cherished for their medicinal and beautifying powers

While you temper your bath with cold water to suit yourself, cleanse your face thoroughly and apply rich nourishing cream. Prepare two cool eyepads dipped in boric acid solution. Slip into the tub, place the pads over the eyes, press them down gently. Now let go—relax. Stay there 10 or 15 minutes inhaling the exquisite and beneficial essence of rich pine

The skin of your body is getting an invigorating health treatment. Touch it and notice how the pine oil clings to it. Your muscles are completely relaxed. Your nerves are soothed; those little fatigue lines of the face are being soothed away.

When you feel rested, remove the pads from your eyes and scrub your body with a flesh brush and soap. Dry thoroughly.

And now to bring about a glow of healthy loveliness! Briskly pat your skin with the fragrant, tingling pine spirits. This unusual astringent is neither an eau de Cologne nor a toilet water. It has medicinal properties that close the pores, leaving the skin smooth and firm, caressed with the stimulating perfume of a pine-laden forest.

You may learn the name of these authentic pine preparations by phoning Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

LARGER ENTRIES AND IMPROVED quality marked the second Oyster Harbors Horse Show on Saturday and Sunday of this week-end . . . It proved more interesting than thrilling . . . more speculative than spectacular. The riders from this part of the Cape are from the younger group and they ride very well indeed. Taken altogether the crowd who attended did not represent the devotees of the horse world which might have been expected but there are several reasons to which this might be attributed—one is that Oyster Harbors is at the far end of the Cape and a long motor journey unless one is going to make it a long week-end and stay over keeps away many from the North Shore; secondly, this show comes before a holiday which takes many far from home and is the last long one before the schools open, and thirdly, there are two other shows at Groton and Hamilton on Monday. There are other reasons but these are enough . . .

Situated ideally on the water's edge, Oyster Harbors is within a few minutes motor drive of Hyannis, Hyannisport, Wianno, Osterville, Falmouth and other pleasure resorts from which the throng was made up . . . we noted the W. L. Davidsons and their four daughters, two sons-in-law and four grandchildren overflowing one box. They had come down from Cohasset to watch their entries take a number of blue ribbons as it happened. The young Davidson girls have ridden since they were able to hold the reins and are able and fearless riders.

Sisters Win Again

THE TWO YOUTHFUL Burkhard girls, Elise, who celebrated her 10th birthday on Saturday, and Ursula, who has enjoyed her 11th, are among the best riders on the Cape . . . they have taken many prizes at the Cape shows during the past three weeks, among them about a dozen blue ribbons, as well as several cups and pieces of plate. Miss Ursula is high up in the ranks with points for winning this summer—third, if we are correct. They are the attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burkhard of Centerville and Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Burkhard entertained at dinner after the horse show at the Oyster Harbors Club, among their guests being Judge and Mrs. Joseph R. McCoole and their daughter, Miss Polly. Miss Elise, as stated, was given a large birthday party on the lawn in honor of her 10th birthday. Almost all of the young guests were in their riding togs and were talking about the show like veterans. A huge white horse, of ice cream, we imagine, was the piece de resistance of the feast.

Malcolm B. Frenches Attend

MANY OF THE HORSE LOVERS gathered in the grill of the Oyster Harbors Club for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres before dressing for dinner and the dance which occurred later at the club. There we met Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. French who were down over the weekend as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Simonds of Dedham . . . they are summering at Oyster Harbors. Mrs. French was glimpsed chatting with Mrs. McCoole, who was very chic in all white sports clothes. White was very popular on this day and is becoming alike to blondes and brunettes.

Mrs. Thomas James of Cohasset was entertaining a group of young people over in a warm corner . . . there was a bright fire crackling in the fireplace, as the evening had turned cool and warm tweed sports coats were welcome.

Mrs. Harold Sawyer in Plaid Tweeds

MRS. HAROLD SAWYER from Scituate was seen around the punch bowl in gay plaid tweeds and Mrs. Alvan Simonds, who was recovering from a spill in her car in the morning, was glad she was alive. Mr. and Mrs. McGoldrick, who have a beautiful estate on the water's edge with lovely gardens in bloom, joined in the merrymaking . . . they had as their guest Francis Ouimet, of golf fame . . . Mrs. Edward Place, whose husband was on the committee, was attending to the wants of the guests . . . we noted her later dancing dee-vinely in a heavenly blue, blue gown.

Mrs. James Roosevelt

Mrs. Alexander Ellis attended with her family . . . we noted the W. H. Balfours and the Edward Donnelly family in the gay throng. Dancing was enjoyed until the wee ama' hours . . . a late breakfast was snatched on the way back from a dip in the ocean . . . another jolly cocktail party before lunch and then the wind-up of the horse show. Very jolly weekend!

Mr. James Roosevelt was a recent guest of the Joseph P. Kennedys at their Hyannisport villa . . .

Mrs. Livermore Wells, Miss Rosamond Smith, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Harper of Milton are late arrivals at Yarmouthport for a visit.

Miss Jordan in Chestnut Hill Ceremony

ONLY THE IMMEDIATE families attended the marriage service this afternoon at 3:30 which united in marriage Miss Mary Stuart Jordan, daughter of Dr. Sara M. Jordan of Chestnut Hill, to Donald Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ritchie of Newton Center.

The ceremony was performed in St. Lawrence Church in Chestnut Hill and Mr. Robert H. Montgomery, an uncle of the bride, gave her away. A larger reception followed at the garden of the Chestnut Hill home of the bride's mother.

The bride carried Madonna lilies with her bouquet white satin made with a court train and a short veil caught to a cap of heirloom lace. Her matron of honor, Miss Mary Montgomery of Cambridge, wearing a white taffeta frock with blue velvet sash, a large white taffeta hat and an arm bouquet of larkspur, attended the bride as maid of honor. Mrs. Renard Overholt, Miss Eleanor Ritchie, Miss Jane Loomis and Miss Lucia Adley were the bridesmaids. Their gowns and hats were replicas of the maid of honor's but their bouquets were small old fashioned clusters of white carnations and larkspur.

The bride's mother was gowned in a blue ensemble with a darker blue hat and Mrs. Ritchie a dress of green was set off by a brown hat.

Due to the simplicity of the service there were no ushers. Mr. Hermann J. Goodberger, Jr., was the best man.

The bride was graduated from the Chonie School and was a member of the class of 1935 at Smith College. Mr. Ritchie attended Andover and Harvard. After October 1st the young couple will make their home at 396 Riverway, Boston.

MAD MILLIONS

By CHARLES GRANT

SYNOPSIS

Lovely, young Cathleen McCarthy tries to discourage the attentions of Seward Ingram, her employer's son, because of social barriers, but he insists on giving her a present. Cathleen with an expensive bracelet. She plans to return it, but her shiftless brother, Joe, steals the bracelet and pawns it for $500. For the first time in his career Jasper Ingram's financial throne is threatened. Just as he is trying to raise several million dollars, his wife, ignorant of the crisis, buys a million to purchase the Russian royal rubies. Ingram refuses and his wife secretly plans a loan.

To add to the financier's difficulties, Arline Martin, an actress, plans to sue Ingram on a false charge for not financing her play. Homer Alspaugh, Ingram's confidential secretary, speculates with his employer's money in the hope of securing money to meet his faithless wife's extravagance.

Marian Alspaugh is having an affair with the Marquis d'Albuis. On a picnic with Seward, Cathleen, unable to tell him the truth about the bracelet, says she must return it, inferring that she is [illegible]. The young couple go on a hike and en route find their way back to the car. They get a lift to the railroad station only to find there is no train that night. They rent a farmhouse and [illegible] with mixed emotions. Cathleen is disappointed. Next morning, Cathleen insists that Seward remain and locate a car, while she returns to the city.

At the station, Seward misses Cathleen. Flustered and forgetful, her beau, after asking the liberty of going through the bag in search of a memento, comes across the pawn ticket for the bracelet. Homer Alspaugh has had luck in his speculations. He replaced the funds taken from Ingram's account and still has several thousand dollars profit.

CHAPTER XXIV

When he told Marian that Jasper Ingram was taking him out to Chicago for a few days she could not, at once, control her expression and he angrily accused her of being glad to be rid of him. She retorted honestly enough:

"You haven't been [illegible] for the last week! Of course I'm glad you'll be taking a day or two out on Mr Ingram for a change instead of me. It's not as if I'd got over my accident yet—I'm still a nervous wreck, though you don't seem to realize it!"

She had to look like a nervous wreck, when, when he raised his voice and lie [illegible] she was terrified until he had gone. Then she had never felt less like one. Her heart pounded, it was wrong for the opportunity she had been given, literally dreaming of what new ness Homer was hardly out of the house when she was at her telephone—calling d'Albuis in New York.

MARIAN WITH MARQES

She had seen him only twice since her [illegible] finally, when [illegible] to inquire [illegible] once. [illegible] alone at the [illegible] Homer would be away [illegible] more. She could [illegible] maids out of the house.

D'Albuis [illegible] Trembling, Marian [illegible] into his arms; they were alone, free to love at last.

"My can't life always be like this?" she wailed.

"It can be and should be," he said. "Courage only is necessary. The question, carina mia, how greatly do you dare?"

"What d'you mean, darling?" Lots of women would have been afraid to have you here like this."

"It is true, tonight is safe to more than I ever dreamed of but, at times I still forget that I am a poor man. For a moment I thought of carrying you away to my castle near Burgos. But I could only carry you into beggary . . . If I can sell Dona Jacela's [illegible] and if she wishes me to attend her back to Europe, I shall have to live with the greatest economy. But if I had fifty thousand pesetas a year, I would not ask you, querdisima, to elope with me! I would take you, by force, if necessary. But how can a beggar play the man? It is not even as though the rubies were sold"

"Bt, darlingest," Mari an protested, "I will have money. Homer would have to give me alimony"

"Alimony—what is that?"

She explained:

"Don't you see? I'll bring suit, and get a divorce. You won't enter into it at all! I'll ask for a thumping alimony. Homer makes ten thousand a year. How much is that in pesetas?"

"Fifty thousand. But we can not [illegible] Cannes. Two cousins and many friends of mine are there already. This beautiful dream should come true Marianella it is on the [illegible] will near Cannes perhaps. You [illegible] The trouble is [illegible] singularly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rich Americans. Questions would not be asked. I should present you [illegible] as Marquesa d'Albuis, and you would be unlikely to meet anyone who had known you as Mrs. Alspaugh."

WOULD BE MARQUESA

"I'd like to be a marquesa," and Marian

"Ah!" continued d'Albuis. "We would lead there an idyllic existence. The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SPECULATE ON RESIGNATION OF DOUGLAS

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

One of the post-holiday questions that is causing a good deal of speculation is the resignation of Budget Director Douglas. The financial district rightly or not, sees something in this latest resignation of a conservative adviser of the New Deal. While it may seem early to consider the budget for the next fiscal year, it is undoubtedly coming in for much attention these days. Coupled with the thought that something happened which the conservative Lewis W. Douglas frowned upon and rather than chance an open break with the administration, he resigned.

Lewis W. Douglas

When considering the resignation of Mr. Douglas, we instinctively hark back to a statement he made in New York on April 18, 1932. Addressing the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Mr. Douglas declared that the economic recovery of the country depends upon unrestricted faith in the government. He further said that the administration has prevailed definite assurances against a budgetary inflation. Could it be that Mr. Douglas now visions budgetary inflation which will create anything but unrestricted faith in government?

Notes: The fall pickup is now being termed as likely to be sluggish . . . Assuming inflation is to be put down, a stock sent until the Treasury plans are announced . . . Looks as though the market would follow along the same lines . . . None-the-less, a conservatively bullish stand is warranted . . . The natural fall and winter groups are to be favored here . . . First of which are the alcohols . . . Next, the chemicals . . . Which suggest more emphasis on the mail order issues.

New purchases or holdings of the construction shares are largely dependent upon the rehabilitation program. Standard Statistics estimates for fall do not indicate this but certain seasonal trend is to be expected this fall in building contracts. Actual contracts awarded fairly well maintained, but no such expansion as was witnessed in the latter part of 1933. It is to be hoped that this part we think the rehabilitation program will go over in fine style Thus supplying unlooked for gains

Briefs: Motor shares to move following well . . . Due in large measure to the sustained business reported from the farm sections . . . Rather confusing this issue of relief and the reported gains of motor makers . . . A double visioned picture is presented that makes it hard for observers to understand why and wherefore . . . Chrysler is still favored by some advisory services as the best stock in its price range . . . A swap into it from other shares is even suggested.

* * *

Until the textile strike has progressed somewhat further it is not at all unlikely that the list will back and fill in listless fashion. But the od adage still holds. We will not sell stocks short, especially when the list is hovering around the low levels established over a 15 month period. We prefer waiting for a real bear signal, which we do not think will be given, before making short sales at this late stage.

Wall Street None Too Cheerful as New Week Opens

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

Wall Street cannot back from its ... Last Saturday's low volume the lowest in 16 years, left the brokers with a bad taste in their mouths. The 110 000 shares which current news on Saturday helped ... swamping of stock by the professionals on the floor who apparently did it because of the want of something better to do.

The market may face a new test of its strength this week.

With the list apparently indicating last week that for the time being, the line of least resistance was toward lower levels, a new test of the July lows can easily take place this week.

In some quarters the test is believed to be almost inevitable if they knew either if it doesn't come this week it will only be postponed for later in the month. With the hearing on the railroad rate ... to start on Sept. 15 ... there does not appear to be much favorable news in the offing to help the market.

The street is awaiting the ... brokerage figures on loan ... later.

The eight weekly consecutive declines in brokers' loan have caused more than passing interest in Wall Street. The latest figures show the loans below the $800,000,000 mark for the first time since January 24, last. This represents a drop of $276,-000,000 or 25.8 per cent from the year's high of $1,069,000,000 on July 3.

The important factor ... lifting the loans total is believed to be the government financing. Whether the ... will be permanent ... which is the ... trend—that is less borrowing against government bonds will be dictated by the exchange's data.

TRADE GROUPS AID LEATHER INDUSTRY

Trade developments of importance have been following on the heels of one another rapidly during the past few weeks, outstanding among these being the recent settlement of the surplus hide situation after strong representations were made to Washington by members of the tanning industry.

The Shoe and Leather Reporter says, in part these members felt that the industry should not be penalized as a result of the activities of ... which was instituted ...

Trade organizations which have become firmly entrenched in our industry of shoe and leather manufacture are ... to the prominent part in the activities of the industry than ever before.

These organizations, which have taken on additional duties since the institution of the NRA are working in newer fields for the betterment within and without their respective branches of the trade.

The cooperative efforts of trade as a whole during the past year have ... and the ... ... industry and has created a great deal of favorable comment. Without the measure of cooperative effort that has been displayed we hesitate to think of the consequences to industry and particularly to our own trade were it not for the activities of these respective organizations.

Thereby, wholesaling, retailing and manufacturing ends of the business have all contributed their share to industrial progress, through a greater measure of cooperative effort. These groups have since themselves been where their particular branches of the industry were threatened by governmental or other measures which failed to accord to industry its right to be considered along with other groups and on the same basis.

The determination to obtain proper consideration for the various branches of the trade which has been so strongly demonstrated by the industry, has resulted in the procurement of advantages to which it is justly entitled, but which were withheld before the more vigorous representation was made by the industry itself.

Recent ... or incorrect ... keep filtering through from Washington by one means or another, that the ... is to ... to set up tannery and shoe factories in the near future in connection with this industry, which is designed to utilize surplus raw stock.

Strong representation must still be made by the proper channels if future activities along these rumored lines are not to encroach on the future prosperity of tanneries and shoe manufacturing. While business methods are desired by government, it is not advisable to have too much government in business.

SHARE PRICES HEAVY NEAR FINISH

Saturday's sales 110,000

Year ago Exch. closed

New York, Sept 4—With trading volume around record low levels, the majority of stocks recorded moderate declines today. The late tone was easy.

Bethlehem, American Telephone and Standard Oil of Indiana held rather steady, but issues of fractions to around a point appeared in Case, U. S. Steel, Cerro de Pasco, General Motors, American Can and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

LEADERS HEAVY

Old time leaders like U. S Steel, Dupont and General Motors were under steady pressure. Losses were small but no rallying power was shown, and bids were filled as fast as they appeared.

The doubt about the normal Fall upturn in the steel industry helped drag these shares down. U. S Steel preferred was notably heavy.

General Motors and Chrysler led the auto list to lower levels, with the accessories heavy in sympathy. Oils displayed a sluggish tone and a few petroleum issues like Atlantic Refining suffered moderate losses.

FALL TREND UNCERTAIN

The financial district apparently was without any decided conviction as to the fall business trend. Steel operations, summarized by the magazine "Steel," are down to around 18¼ per cent of capacity, the low level for the bank holiday last year. Electric power output was also said to be running under the rate of the previous week.

At the same time, industrial analysts found some comfort in their study of curtailing policies which understood to be higher in relation to general production than in many months. Moreover, it is understood that manufacturing output for August was somewhat below last months sales, thus indicating to trade students that distribution has been ahead of the factories and that inventories have been diminishing.

Automobile production during the past week, however, showed a substantial decline According to Ward's reports motor car output for the week totaled 32,568 units compared with 52,351 in the previous week, and 43,843 in the corresponding 1933 week The same trend was said to have strengthened somewhat, but this was regarded as temporary and a downward tendency is expected in a month.

Lumber Employment Down

Washington, D. C. Sept. 4—Estimated total employment in the Lumber and Timber Products Industries dropped to 397,185 in June from 413,722 in May, as shown by data prepared for the Lumber Code Authority by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. These totals were computed by use of production ratios from actual reports made by 4780 identical firms for the two months.

April took the lead under the Lumber Code, previously estimated as 386,000, should be revised to at least 390,000 to include code groups organized in April and participating in the employment report for May-June

Employment in June was affected by the decline in production due to anticipation of the 10% reduction in mill prices which became effective July 20 and by the lonshoremen's strike on the Pacific coast. The strike accurately affected the Douglas Fir region, the output of lumber there dropping from 416,000,000 feet in May to 213,000,000 in June and causing the number of logging and sawmill employees to drop from 52,304 to 38,620.

Insurance Stocks Improve

Insurance stocks in the New York city market registered some further improvement during the past week and are now at the highest levels since mid-July. The aggregate value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues, according to Holt, Rose & Troster records, amounted to $444,468,000 on August 31, compared with $442,307,000 on August 25, an increase of $2,349,000, or 0.53 per cent.

The current average yield of the 20 issues of 4.11 per cent compares with a yield of 4.13 per cent a week ago, and the current market value is equal to 1.15 times the current liquidating value, unchanged for the week. Combined operating earnings from underwriting and net investment income are now 10.34 per cent on market, as compared with 10.39 per cent the week before, and based upon current figures the 20 issues are now quoted at an average of 9.7 times their combined operating earnings, against 9.6 on August 25.

PRODUCTION OF OIL LOWER

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 4 (AP)—Production drops in California, Oklahoma and Kansas served to bring the United States crude oil output down 42,066 barrels daily in the past week, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The nation's output dropped from 3,551,852 to 3,509,061.

The decrease in California was from 493,000 to 490,000 barrels. In Oklahoma the decrease was from 477,050 to 460,550 barrels and the Kansas cut was from 138,040 to 128,000 barrels.

Texas production increased from 1,984,307 to 1,986,548 barrels, with East Texas showings will evidence of an export tax was decided against.

The Secretary of Agriculture stated that Cuba was awaiting a ruling by the United States Government subjecting Cuban sugars in bonded warehouses in that country to the regulations just decreed.

By AUSTEN LAKE

PRESIDENT F. D. ROOSEVELT ONCE REMARKED that sport is a fine sedative to public emotion, a soothing syrup for the national gripes and an opiate to political insomnia. Maybe he didn't say it quite that way, but he meant that America's interest in sporting subject acts as an ice pack for their social headaches—of which there are pub-lenty at the moment.

Austen Lake

So now with the textile strike, election cramps and international jitters depressing the public pulse, what does Old Doc Sport do but give the patient an extra dose of nerve tonic.

The baseball season is rising to its World Series crisis. The college and pro football season is picking up headway. The national amateur golf is blowing hot at Brookline. The international heavyweight yacht races are inflating their pretty red balloon off Newport. Herr Paul Bowser and his fellow conspirators are drafting their fall wrestling schedules.

This will not affect a national nerve cure, but it will help to reduce popular blood pressure. Unless you are one who believes, with the Russian Soviet, that the people play too much at non-essential games, and what they need are tournaments of post-hole digging, hay-forking for volume and pick and shovel decathlons.

THEN THERE IS THE BOSTON HOCKEY WAR, whose clouds are still scudding around the horizon. I learn that the Chicago Blackhawks, which are being squeezed by their landlord, the Coliseum, for a large rental, are, like the Bruins, considering a season of barnstorming with no home games.

The Bruins, refusing to treat with the present Garden management, are waiting for Thursday, the day when the Garden's affairs are supposed to be given a blood transfusion before deciding on their winter plan.

THE RABBIT MARANVILLE DAY CROWD was half as large as the pre-game estimate. Judge Fuchs says until the announcement that Rabbit would appear briefly on crutches and not in uniform on the coaching lines, as had been previously supposed, the advance sale boomed. Thereafter it fell off suddenly.

"People on crutches are painful sights," muses the Judge. "Since the war folk are avoiding reminders of suffering. If Rabbit had been lit and able to play, we would have filled the park."

That may be. But the Phillies, who were playing the Braves that day, are symbols of suffering, too. And maybe the potential customers stayed away to avoid breaking their hearts.

IF THE CHICAGO CUBS LOSE in the National League pennant drive, they can lay the blame on the Braves, who have beaten them in 11 of the 17 games played this season. Oddly, the St. Louis Cardinals, which have won 14 of 18 games played with the Braves, have been so much duck broth for the Cubs, which have beaten them 12 in 21.

* * *

RHODE ISLAND RACE PEOPLE have been lathered no end by frequent insinuations in the Boston press that the majority of their crowds at Narragansett hail from Greater Boston. They point to the Labor Day gathering of 50,000 at 'Gansett, while 25,000 were attending Rockingham, as final proof that the greater proportion come from their own state.

As a matter of fact, Saratoga has been complaining during the past meeting that Narragansett has been pilfering much of its old following.

It seems to be a general round of complaint, because the Braves and Red Sox feel that racing has cut into their crowds heavily. Only 6000, watched the games at Braves Field yesterday, a record for smallness on summer's last holiday.

SCARCELY A BALL PLAYER EXISTS in the major leagues today who has not some little superstitious foible, even those who are former collegians Bill Terry warms up with his shortstop. Babe Herman of the Cubs always steps on first base when coming in from his position. Hugh Critz of the Giants always moves the opposing second baseman's glove and carries pebbles in his hip pocket. Carl Hubbell, between innings, folds his glove so that the fingers point toward the pitching box.

Many—a list as long as your arm—avoid stepping on the foul lines going to and from their posts. Gabby Hartnett believes it courts disaster if any of his Cub mates pass between the plate and the umpire. These are only a hatful of the many.

I was talking it over with Judge Fuchs during the holiday game. "Silly, ain't it?" he grunted. Yet it was the good Judge who last year, just before the big September series with the Giants, forced Manager Bill McKechnie to bring back Mrs. McKechnie from Pittsburgh because she had been present during the Braves' drive toward the top.

And Mrs. McK., who had just arrived at her home from Boston, doubled back on her tracks without even unpacking her traveling case.

MUCH TO DO WAS RAISED LAST SUMMER when Helen Wills Moody walked off the Forest Hills courts in default of her tennis match with Helen Jacobs, suffering from what the grave digger's voice through the loud speaker said was "sub-acute, unstable, fifth lumbar vertebra symptoms."

It turned out to be just a pain in the back. But the press boys and the tennis officials screamed about whether she had any right to march off, and Helen Jacobs was quoted as saying some uncomplimentary things, which she later protested the writers stuffed into her mouth.

At any rate, today Helen Jacobs has a pain very like and very close to the same region as Mrs. Moody's, having ripped a spinal muscle on the same Forest Hills court. She will require a few weeks' rest. Mrs. Moody, just coming out of her convalescence, has as yet sent no word of sympathy.

Railbird's View of Victory Tour for Crazy Jane in 4th at Rockingham

A thrill for the railbird photographer came in the fourth holiday race at Rockingham Park when Crazy Jane thundered down the stretch to win. Here Crazy Jane romps to the finish, leading Blue Day, second, and Redlight, third. Crazy Jane paid a conservative $6.50, $4.10 and $2.70. A handle of $62,789 was bet on this race alone, as the day's pari-mutuel figures at Salem went to $417,518. More than 25,000 fans attended. Over 50,000 attended the Narragansett Park closing card at Pawtucket, R. I., and wagered $712,138. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

13 LETTERMEN ON TERRIER FOOTBALL ROSTER

Pat Hanley, new grid mentor at Boston University was greeted by one of the largest turnouts in Terrier history this morning when 32 candidates reported at Nickerson Field, Weston. Thirteen of the number were lettermen from last year's squad.

The squad was put through regular conditioning work of grass drills and calisthenics. From now until Sept. 18 two practice sessions a day will be in order.

Holmer will be remembered in Boston pro football fans as a member of the Redskins last season.

MILLER TO BOX IN ENGLAND SEPT. 20

A long jaunt for Freddy Miller of Cincinnati, N. B. A. featherweight champion, opened the other day as Miller sailed from Boston on board the Laconia, bound for England.

Miller has a bout with Mel Tarleton slated for Sept. 20, at London. Accompanying Miller was Ralph Lenny, sparring partner and an able ring worker. Lenny fights in a semifinal to the Miller-Tarleton affair.

Miller is managed by Pete Reilly, former pilot of Jack Delaney, Bat Battalino, Andre Routis and other famed ringmen. Reilly believes Miller is the best man of his weight—126 pounds—now in active service in the ring.

Bouts tentatively arranged in the United States will bring Miller homeward soon after the go in Britain.

In Class B the low man will acquire three wooden clubs, a large size leather zipper bag will be the low net award, and the second lowest reduced score will be the means of taking home a Bobby Jones wood.

A leather golf bag is the gross prize for Class C while a pair of expensive golf shoes and a reading lamp have been selected as the net trophies. There will also be a special prize for the best selected nine.

Malcolm Sampson, winner of the recent Maynard open, topped class B with a 78. C. E. Clemons, another Bear Hill representative, took low net in the second division with an 82. 66. K. K. Parker's 85 was the low card in class C, with the net prize going to C. F. Lynch, Unicorn, who was 86—68. Jack Page, Winchester, won the long driving contest, and F. A. Morrow was adjudged the winner of the special prize for the best selected nine.

The Bellevue course, as usual, is in tip-top condition for the open, and, because of the hearty welcome that has always been tendered visitors by its members, a record-breaking field is predicted.

Contestants, who wish to arrange for starting times, should telephone Joe Rustic, the club professional, at Melrose 2935.

Mayor to Tee Off First Tomorrow in American's "Ace" Tourney

Bright and early tomorrow morning the players to be escorted by Major Fred W. Mansfield and Park Commissioner William P. Long, will step up to the specially constructed platform at Franklin Park.

And as Mayor tees off the third annual Boston Evening American golf tournament will get off to an auspicious start.

For close to two weeks the air around the Franklin Park links will be filled with flying balls driven at the waiving target 126 yards away, as some 2000 golfers seek the valuable prizes offered.

It is not too late to enter. Entries will be accepted at the tee, the only requirements being that the player bring along five balls and his own club. The balls will be returned to the owner by caddies assigned for the purpose.

Each contestant will be allowed five shots at the green. Those balls coming to rest within the charmed circle, ten feet in diameter, will be carefully marked and tabulated.

The man or woman, boy or girl who makes a hole in one or in the event none is successful in this feat, the one coming nearest to the hole, will be awarded the grand prize. The next nearest will get second award, and so on until the list of gifts is exhausted.

Just remember, that you and the next fellow and girl are welcome. Report at Franklin Park and you will be properly entered and permitted to play.

CRUSADER GRID SQUAD STRONG THIS SEASON

By Walter Kiley

College football today attempted to crowd its way into print, already cluttered with horse racing news, golf and yacht championships.

Of local import were the opening drills of Boston College, Boston University, Northeastern, Holy Cross and St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H.

Hopes are high at all these colleges, but Holy Cross looms the most powerful of them all.

With the lone exception of Captain Charlie Reise, every veteran of the 1933 team will return. And the talent coming up from last year's potent freshmen squad is exceptionally good.

Joe McKennev, now starting his eighth year as head coach at B. C., has the makings of another fine eleven.

Boston University's eyes are focused on Harry "Pat" Hanley, who comes on from Northwestern to place the Terriers in the collegiate football ace.

Al McCoy's Huskies of Northeastern launch their second season of varsity play. Last year McCoy produced a strong, well directed team, which showed marked ability as the season wore on.

St. Anselm's, too, is beginning its second year of varsity play. Its task is perhaps the most difficult of all, for it opens against Holy Cross on Sept. 22 and a week later meets Boston College.

Dartmouth, with Earl "Red" Blaik, Joe Donchess, Swede Ellstrom and "Pat" Ellinger as its new coaching staff, squares off on Friday of this week. Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth will be out Sept. 15.

Needham A. L. Games on Saturday

The Needham Post, American Legion, stages a track and field meeting on Saturday at Memorial Park, Needham. Five N. E. title events are included.

Louise Stokes of the Onteora Club of Malden will seek to retain her 100-meter dash crown. Other senior title-holders listed to compete are Sylvia Brennan of the Brockton Girls' A. C., running broad jump, and Josephine Lally, baseball throw.

Headliners Gain Net Third Round

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 4—Sidney Wood, Gregory Mangin (George Lott, Frank Parker and Perkins Bell have gained the third round in the national singles championships here.

Vances Keep Winning

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4—Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Vance of Waban, Mass., national skeet shooting champions, won an event apiece in the first annual South-South skeet championship at Bradley Hills, Md.

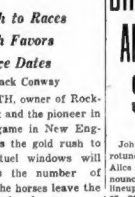
Mr. Boston Says:—

Gold Rush to Races
Lou Smith Favors
Fewer Race Dates

By Jack Conway

LOU SMITH, owner of Rockingham Park and the pioneer in the racing game in New England, believes the gold rush to the pari-mutuel windows will cease unless the number of dates when the horses leave the barrier are reduced.

"I believe 80 days of racing is enough for New England," Lou told me as we watched the horses get ready for the start of a race. "It will be necessary for the owners of the various tracks to limit the number of days of racing if they wish to protect their own business.



Mr. Boston

"There are only so many potential customers, and each has a limited amount of money to bet. If you give the public too much racing, you will soon find a falling off in attendance figures and also in the amount of money which passes through the pari-mutuel windows.

"I have always thought they know more about horse racing in Maryland than in any other State. There has been horse racing in that State for a great many years. Racing has prospered because the number of race meetings has been limited. Many of the meetings have lasted only three weeks."

Plans for New Layout

I ASKED Smith if he had any new plans in regard to Rockingham Park.

"Next year I shall build a new grandstand and clubhouse," was his quick answer. "I shall have a racing plant here which will be the equal of Belmont Park.

"Rockingham Park has a marvelous natural setting. I do not know of any track which is better situated. Our new plans call for more and better boxes, enlarged seating capacity and better stables.

"I do not believe it would be possible to improve upon the track itself. We have one of the fastest tracks in the country.

"I have been pleased by the fine support we have received from horsemen. Our barns are filled with the best horses in the East. You will see some first class racing before our present meeting ends."

Racing Boom Increases

THE LARGE crowds at Narragansett Park and Rockingham Park on Saturday and the holiday were merely added proof of the new popularity of the racing. Even the conflict in dates between the two parks did not prove disastrous.

I believe further conflicts will be avoided. In the long run such clashes would injure races. The owners of the rival tracks should arrange their meetings so that there will not be any clashes.

Fate of Favorites

FIGURES gathered from race tracks over a period of years prove that 70 per cent of the favorites are doomed to go down to defeat. This is why it is always not wise to play the favorite.

In the average race where eight to 10 horses are competing, there are usually three or four horses of about equal merit.

I know one famous handicapper who seldom bets on a favorite. He likes the third or fourth horse in the betting as a rule. When he wins, he usually cashes in at a fair price.

Most betting systems have proved failures. It is possible to beat a particular race, but one can never hope to beat the races.

Even as you and I.

Monterey, Cal., Sept. 4 (INS)—Max Baer and Young Corbett III have been entered on the preferred list of the Monetery American Legion.

DUNLAP AND LITTLE ARRIVE AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

BRAVES WIN ON ANNOUNCER'S STRATAGEM

By Joe Cashman

John Patrick O'Brien is that rotund, pudgy gentleman in the Alice blue uniform who announces the batting order and lineup changes, acts as cheer leader, page, messenger of joy and gloom and custodian of baseballs, and restores lost children to their parents, or vice versa, up at Braves Field.

It has been said of Mr. O'Brien that should he decide to go into retirement, Judge Fuchs would have to hire five men to do the varied jobs performed by this most versatile of employes.

But far from harboring any ideas about quitting, Mr. O'Brien feels he doesn't do enough to earn his weekly wage and is ever on the qui vive for new ways of adding to his usefulness.

He found one on Labor Day, which is our idea of a most appropriate time to make such a discovery.

EVEN RABBIT LIKES IT

He injected himself into the ball game on the strength of his uniform and master-minded the Braves to victory over the Dodgers in the nightcap.

And even little Rabbit Maranville, famed for his quick wit on the diamond, had to admit that the O'Brien strategy was the smartest in his memory.

It happened while the Braves were at bat in the fourth frame of a 2-3 pitching duel between "Huck" Betts and Johnny Bobich, enemy rookie.

"Pinkey" Whitney topped a slow roller to Stripp down third base way and beat the throw to first by the length of a whisker.

Guarding the initial sack for the Dodgers was John Augustus McCarthy, a product of the Chicago sandlots, recently recalled from Dayton to spell "Sanbo" Lazzeri who had his toe stepped on last week.

Stripp's throw broke away from McCarthy a foot or so, and when the youngster recovered the ball there was Mr. O'Brien, over by the screen, wig-wagging at him.

"They don't teach that language in Chicago," exclaimed the bewildered Mr. McCarthy. "What's ailing you?"

"I'm fine, and the top o' the morning to you, sir. I was just wondering whether you'd give me that ball as a souvenir for my grandchild. I have hundreds of them, but not a single one that's been bashed for a hit by my pal Whitney," replied Mr. O'Brien in dulcet, pleading tones.

"Ah, it's a Kerry man you are," chirped Mr. McCarthy. "So am I. And a fellow countryman can have the shirt off my back. Here's your ball."

Whereupon he threw the agate in the general direction of the portly announcer. But suddenly Mr. O'Brien had lost all interest in that particular pellet and was off, with a nasty laugh, to another task by the time the sphere bounded off the stand.

FRANKHOUSE IN TRIM

And before Catcher Berres could recover the ball, Whitney was on third. He scored a moment later on a fly by Hogan, and the Tribe was never headed thereafter.

The natives added another run later and that, too, can be charged more or less directly to Mr. O'Brien's mean Irish trick on an innocent Gael. For McCarthy became so upset that two innings later he hit Hal Lee in the back with a throw, and the local left-fielder, instead of being retired, lived to count.

Mr. O'Brien was of no assistance to his diamond heroes in the opener, but he didn't need to be. Fred Frankhouse, out with a lame back for 10 days, came back to blank the Dodgers with six hits for his 16th win of the year.

The Tribal curve ball ace had to be just that good to win. Ray Benge, who opposed him, yielded only four bingles. The Whitney-Hogan combination was also the big offensive noise in this tilt. "Pinkey" singled and scored all the way from first with the only run, when "Shanty" followed suit in the third.

Peacock Keeps Track Title

New York, Sept. 4—Eulace Peacock, Boston University track and field ace, retained his national pentathlon championship at the Travers Island games, scoring 3258.46 points in the five-event test.

Harold Osborn was second and George Bonhag of Boston fifth.

Peacock won the broad jump and 220 meter dash, was third in the discus and last in the 1500 meter run.

Hall Stars Defeat Smart Oil Twice

Hall All-Stars took a comfortable lead in the Suburban Twi championship playoff series when they took both games of a holiday doubleheader from Smart Oil at Bicycle Park, Waltham.

Court King Bombs U.S. Aces in Throne Play

Fred Perry of England, world's tennis champion, makes a stirring action picture as he serves in a match of the United States singles tourney at Forest Hills, N. Y. Perry won his opening round match over Carl Schweikhardt of New York. He is the favorite to take the title this week. Many experts rank him with the finest courtmen of all time. Small Holiday Crowd Sees Braves Take Fast Pair From Dodgers

By Joe Cashman

The Labor Day double-header at the Wigwam was one of the fastest played and attracted one of the smallest holiday crowds on record. The last out of the nightcap was recorded at 4:40 p. m., and the customers didn't number more than 10,000.

Fred Frankhouse wouldn't move off the mound for fear of aggravating his side injury during the early innings of the opener, and four of the Dodgers' six hits were due to his caution. Toward the close, however, Fred was never spryer, finishing up with three assists and two putouts.

Two hits and three flies were the only drives the Dodgers were able to knock to the outfield against Frankhouse. Only in the first and eighth did the enemy threaten, and in each instance a sparkling double play halted them.

Ray Benge, Brooklyn veteran, deserved a better fate in the opener. He gave only four hits, three of which were bunched in the third, and didn't yield a safety the rest of the way.

"Pinkey" Whitney turned in a fine piece of base-running in scoring all the way from first on Hogan's single in the third for the lone run of the opener. "Shanty" might have gone to second, as the ball rolled to the Brooklyn bull-pen, but he was taking no chances. A moment later, Large Francis went only from second to third on an Urbanski double, but that was because it looked as though the ball might be caught.

"Huck" Betts helped himself out plenty in the nightcap when he squeezed home McManus in the second and turned the bunt into a base hit.

The first six batters in the Dodgers' lineup against Betts were left-handed stickers.

Two Dodgers tried to steal on "Shanty" Hogan in the nightcap, and both were cut down by the Somerville boy's arm.

For a guy who was all but packed up to be shipped back to the minors in mid-summer, Hogan is doing very well himself these days. He's played every inning of the four games staged in the past two afternoons.

Les Mallon is still bothered by the groin strain he suffered in Pittsburgh last week, and Martin Joseph McManus is once more proving a lifesaver for the Warriors.

All four runs made by the Tribe off Johnny Babich in the nightcap were unearned. The Dodgers muffed five costly errors back of their star rookie.

Jimmy Jordan, Dodgers' substitute infielder who did a disappearing act recently, has returned to the fold. "I must have said something to hurt his feelings, though I can't remember it," says the comical Casey Stengel, in explaining the incident, "but it's o. k. He was visiting the President. I don't know where Sam Leslie wants to go, but he's asked for the last two weeks of September for his vacation."

Ralph Boyle, who used to play for the Braves, saved the Dodgers plenty of troubles in both games by superb throws from left-field. He trapped Tommy Thompson trying to stretch a hit into a double in the opener and nailed Randy Moore trying to go from first to third on a single in the nightcap.

Wes Ferrell won his 14th game in 17 starts when he steered the Red Sox to a 6 to 3 victory over the Senators in the opener of the holiday doubleheader at Washington. The second game was called because of darkness after the Fenway flock had tied the score at 4 all in the eighth.

The leaders in both major leagues ran into the Labor Day deluge, the Giants being rained out in Philadelphia and the Tigers meeting the same fate in Chicago.

The Yanks passed up a chance to cut down Detroit's 3½ game lead when they were held even by the Athletics.

The Giants didn't lose any ground, either, as the Cards were walloped twice by the Pirates and fell back into a second-place tie with the Cubs, who split with the Reds. Both Western contenders are now seven games behind the world champion New Yorkers.

3 CADET VETS ON GRID LIST AT POINT

West Point, Sept. 4—The Cadet grid squad was in action here today. Practice opened last Saturday, and with only brief workout periods slated the players must be driven at top speed for the opener with Washburn College on Sept. 29.

Beginning his second year as mentor, Coach Gar Davidson has a varsity squad which contains only three veterans from last year's team. They are Joe Stancook, captain and fullback; Jack Buckler, halback, and Jack Beall, tackle.

Besides these regulars, six lettermen are available. These are "Moose" Miller, tackle; "Curly" Edwards, end; Bob Stillman, guard; and Bill Martz, "Ozzie" Simons and Joe Nazzaro, backs.

Bob Stillman is probably the outstanding member of this group and will be the cog around which Davidson will build the center of the line, Stillman having played nearly as much time as the other regular guards.

Davidson stated that his early season work would be directed mainl ytowards building up two complete teams so as to be able to substitute freely later in the season.

Practice sessions on Mondays and Wednesdays this season will be limited to 40 minutes. The group has an hour and three-quarters on other days.

The 1934 schedule is: Sept. 29, Washburn College; Oct. 6, Davidson College; 13, Drake University; Oct. 20, The University of the South (Sewanee); Oct. 27, Yale (at New Haven); Nov. 3, University of Illinois (at Champaign); Nov. 10, Harvard (at Cambridge); Nov. 17, Army (at New York); Nov. 24, Notre Dame (at New York); Dec. 1, Navy (at Philadelphia).

U. S., British Champs Play First Rounds on Title Course

By Bill Grimes

Divots are flying in all directions at The Country Club. Bright and early this morning, scores of aspirants for the national amateur championship began to tune up for the greatest of all golf classics.

The ban on practice rounds was lifted this morning, and no sooner was the barrier down than the thundering horde went into action.

Among the early arrivals was George T. Dunlap, Jr., the defending champion. Accompanied by Lawson Little, the British amateur title holder, Johnny Fischer, medalist at Baltimore and Cincinnati and twice winner of the national intercollegiate crown, and Max Marston, a fogmer United States amateur champion, Dunlap came up today from New London, where they had played an exhibition match.

LITTLE AT PEAK OF GAME

Dunlap was loud in his praise of The Country Club course. During the 1932 Walker Cup matches there he was 66, with one concession.

According to Dunlap, Fischer and Marston, Little is at the very peak of his game. If he is able to retain his present article of golf for the next fortnight, it will require par smashing rounds to get him out of the running.

Two of the five Southwestern district qualifiers, Reynolds Smith and Dave Goldman, who hail from Dallas, Texas, were at The Country Club on the holiday, as was Ed Kingsley, from Salt Lake City. Kingsley has held the Utah amateur title for three years.

TAILER HERE TOMORROW

Although the Texans were more interested in taking a sightseeing trip with the Munsers than golf, Kingsley worked out the kinks developed during his long trip across the country, on the practice tee.

Kingsley wears glasses and is short and stocky. Judging from his shots down the polo field, he is quite a golfer, despite his unusually fast back swing.

Although there were many out of state golfers practicing today, for the most part the field was composed of local talent. Bill Blaney, the state champion, was due to play this afternoon, as was Johnny Nies; some of the qualifiers from Connecticut, and Johnny Boyd, the Maine amateur king.

Tommy Tailer, who topped the field at the Rhode Island Country Club during the New England sectional qualifications, will not be here until tomorrow. He will come over from New York with Eddie Driggs.

Tailer is made of championship stuff. Watch him.

Miss Rawls in Decathlon Sweep

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 4—Completing the greatest all-around swimming and diving exhibition ever fashioned by a female swimmer, 17-year-old Katherine Rawls, of Miami Beach, Fla., swept the decathlon in the national swimming carnival at Jones Beach.

She darted and dived, gingerly through the rain-drops to win the five holiday events and supplement her clean-up of the five tests Sunday.

The Florida girl started with a victory in the 10-foot dive, then won the 50-meter breast stroke, 100-meter free style, 100-meter back-stroke, and the medley.

Miss Rawls' back stroke she c' feates, Alice Bridges of Whitinsville, Mass., the national champion, by a foot. Miss Bridges was fourth 'n the competition.

School Teams Buckle Down

By Bill Connell

Greater Boston schools roll into full football stride this week, with a majority of the squads going into the half dozen early starters which opened the grind last week.

Only three weeks' work is allowed many of the schools, which start play two weeks from Saturday. The brief stretch of training is needed badly, with heavy rebuilding assignments on the coches' hands.

Everett, Malden, Medford, Marblehead and Peabody, among the prominent groups, have a week of practice completed. Any or all of the five will show the results of the tuning when they open play. Each has a stiff program and will need every possible bit of polishing.

Jimmy Astuto leads Brockton for the second successive year when that equal opens work tomorrow under Coach Marlon Roberts. Brockton had a rough time last year with only a couple of veterans in action. This year 11 lettermen are back, and prospects are brighter.

Brockton has one of the longest schedules of any school in the state, with 11 games. The opener with Lynn G. E. comes Sept. 22. From then on the rollers play each week, through Thanksgiving. Following the first game are lined up New Bedford Vocational, Medford, Brown Frosh, Newton, Milford Malden, Fitchburg, Manchester Central, Quincy and Waltham.

By Bob Ahearn

Leading the Northeastern League by a half game margin, Watertown hopes to increase its margin this evening when it plays the Hartford Senators in a floodlight contest at Victory Field, Watertown. Mogul Roger E. Baker's lighting equipment will be used. Game time is booked for 8:30 o'clock.

As the Watertown, Worcester, Manchester and Lowell outfits are staging a hectic battle for the pennant, the last week's schedule of tilts should produce some lively encounters for the after-supper patrons.

Plans are being completed by Baker and General Manager Walter Hapgood for the championship series of games between the winners of the first half, Lowell, and the second half pace setters, which will be staged in a four out of seven games series next week.

Fourth day of play in the National Amateur Baseball tourney gets underway this afternoon on the Lynn Stadium. Large crowds have attended the opening days of the event.

Veimos Athletics, of Danford, Me., stood out in the holiday games. In the morning fray, Veimos put out the Polish Colleglans, of Easthampton, 6 to 5, and defeating the Lynn Cushmans in the nightcap, 7 to 3. Marblehead Dustlers edged Framingham Braves, 5 to 4 in the other game.

Downs, on the mound for the Veimos in the a. m. encounter, allowed but seven hits and was credited with 9 assists and 2 putouts.

Coming from behind in the eighth stanza, Lord Tannings of Woburn defeated the Jordan Marsh nine, 9 to 8 at Manchester Field, Winchester. Sanford, playing second base for the Retailers, hit for the circuit.

SOBIEHA IS BEST WAGERING PROPOSITION

her in the Labor Day Handicap and under the light impost of 108 pounds, the daughter of Sir Galla- had 3d should never leave the is- sue in doubt.

WAX, ROYAL LINK, MISS BOSS

FIRST RACE—$800, claiming, two-year-olds, five furlongs:

Wittekind	104 Turmoil 105
Masked Review	108 Royal Link 107
Wax	3105 Molly Greenock 103
Miss Boss	107 Jay D 3109

WAX appears to be well suited by all the conditions of the af- fair. The Victorian colt needs only an intelligent ride in order to grace the winner's circle. His last fair a lit- less performance on the part of D. Sorenson, he would have been much closer in his last at Narragansett. ROYAL LINK is endowed with a high turn of early speed, but is also very much out of breath that he will hold on long to snare the place from MISS BOSS. The latter turned in several fair efforts at the other town and looks next best.

MADDENING, KINDRED SPIRIT, CIVIL WAR

SECOND RACE—$800, claiming, two-year-olds, five furlongs:

Hard Chase	105 Kindred Spirit 111
Topway	107 Maddening 3103
Radiator	104 Deserted 108
Goose Creek	104 Civil War 3109
Donna Tutti	3106

MADDENING has only to run kindly in order to be the first under the imaginary wire in this affair. The Greentree Miss was held in high regard by her con- nections earlier in the year, but she is addicted to sulking which ac- counts for her being in a cheap race of this sort. KINDRED SPIRIT placed to Tuttlecrib in his last outing at Narragansett and looks next best. CIVIL WAR was pitted against high class colts at the recent Arlington Park meeting and is evidently held in high re- gard by his connections.

HAPPY SCOT, MORHEART, KAI-FINN

THIRD RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, five furlongs:

Paper Profits	110 Happy Scot 116
Grace Better	3105 Morheart 3110
Bryn Athyn	102 Monks Star 108
Happy Surprise	111 Kai-Finn 111
Hasty Belle	3107 Kai-Finn 111
Suspicious	106

IF HAPPY SCOT is in shape, he should experience little difficulty in holding this ordinary lot safe. The son of Scotch Broom is the class of the race, but he has been away for almost a month. His owner has been breezing him in fog in the morning's broadcasted that the stockers have been unable to time him. MORHEART dropped a tough decision to Macaloa in La- bor Day. With that effort under his belt, he looms as strictly the one to drub. KAI-FINN has a high turn of early foot and may hang on long enough to share in the minor award.

DOUGLAS F. CASH SURREN- DER, DORNOCH

FOURTH RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs:

On Guard	113 Cash Surrender .3107
Dornoch	3112 Allotment 3103
Glorious	3107 Sir Gallahad 112
Douglas F.	112

DOUGLAS F. has a couple of bangup Narragansett races to rec- ommend him for honors. The Ar- gon colt is meeting the same sort he drubbed in those races. CASH SURRENDER is in excellent shape and should have little trouble in holding the others safe. DORNOCH benefited by a good race in his course should have third honors all to himself.

SOBIEHA, DAWAGOE, GIFT OF ROSES

My Dandy	105 Sobieha 108
Sandwala	109 Proud Girl 101
Pushing Thru	112 Wacoche 102
Dawagoe	98 Mahagony 100
Gift of Roses	112 Good Signor 92

SOBIEHA will have DAWAGOE to drub. The latter has a fairly good New York record and should furnish the top set with plenty of opposition if sent back. GIFT OF ROSES has several races to to credit, which is rejected would make her all dangerous.

KHAMSEEN, LOW COST, FABIUS

SIXTH RACE—$1000, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile and seven- t-16:

Below Cost	3104 Brass Monkey .. 3103
Her Gold	3106 Fabius 109
Champion	3105 Double Soldier .. 3107
Contes Power	3107

KHAMSEEN needs only a smooth ride in order to win this Hair. Last out the Sir Greysteel colt received wretched handling om inexperienced M. Griffin. BELOW COST turned in a cork- ing effort on opening day to place Fidelis. Off that effort, he shapes up all dangerous. FABIUS as honest as they come and ust be accorded some sort of a hance.

BESTJOHN, BOOCAP, TUFFY G.

SEVENTH RACE — $800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile and eighth:

Sobieha	3106 Last Bid 3100
Tuffy G.	3106 Bestjohn 3111
Valaire	3102 Boocap 3106
High Rocks	3106

BESTJOHN, benefitted by a con- ditioner over the course, should prove able to drub the ordinary opposition in this race. The Al Tarr-trained thoro ghbred closed a good gap in his debut at a mile and one-sixteenth and the added distance of this affair should prove to be right down his alley. TUFFY G. grubbed an ordinary lot in his last Gansett outing.

DE VALERA, WAYLAYER, MISS MOROCCO

Red Badge	101 Miss Morocco ..3110
Mischief	106 Heartbeat 113
Waylayer	3100 De Valera 3103

DE VALERA has only to come back to anyone of his good races in order to win this affair. The son of Upset has a smattering of class and only a short while ago placed to spinaca over this same distance at Saratoga. WAYLAYER is a much better horse than his last race will attest. Mayhap that he'll show startling improvement. MISS MOROCCO is well suited by the distance and looks next best.

Jimmy Kayoed Terris on 2 Steaks; May Need 3 to Flatten Barney

By Bill Corum

New York, Sept. 4—When James Archibald McLarnin first came to our town some six years ago, he really was "Baby Face Jim." He had just turned 21. Somebody on the West Coast had written Billy Moore, the restaurant man, saying:

"Go around and meet this kid. You'll like him because he is Irish. He can fight, and the chances are no matter who he fights you can win yourself a bet."

We had a pretty handy sort of lightweight around our town in those days by the name of Sid Ter- ris. He was living proof that the hand was faster than the eye, even with a boxing glove on it (the hand, not the eye), and he had been a forest fire in our league. If memory serves they called him "the ghost of the Ghetto."

So McLarnin was matched to meet him in the Garden. Probably had been matched to meet him be- fore he came to town. I don't re- call now, and it doesn't matter. Anyhow, when it came along time for the fight, Billy Moore went up to where Jim was training at the old Polo Grounds in the restaurant for his before-the-battle-meal" after weighing in.

Funny enough, the three strangers from the Far West—Baby Face, Pop and the trainer—showed up about 3 o'clock in the afternoon on the day of the fight. They had the usual beef tea and steaks all around and tomato salad.

RIGHT ON THE DOT

They were big steaks, according to Willie, but McLarnin's scarcely were on the table before he had galloped through it like Cavalcade galloping through the stretch. The kid was really hungry. Moore was watching him.

"Like to have another one?" he asked.

"I'd love it," replied Jimmy.

So he got a second steak, larger even than the first one, and when the time came to pay the check, Willie waved them on their way with a further invitation to come back after the fight, win, lose or draw.

"I'll be here, sure," Jim promised fervently.

Even though the fight didn't last as long as it took to tell the tale, you may recall what happened. Terris came bouncing out of his corner, bounced into a short right- hand shot to the whiskers, and promptly bounced into a coma on the flat of his back.

True to his word, McLarnin was back in Moore's almost by the time the fight extras hit the streets. Willie was waiting just inside the door with congratula- tions.

Moral—It's better to be cur- feited than sorry. Maybe, it would be a good idea for Jimmy to take on three steaks Thursday afternoon before taking on Jar- ney Ross Thursday night. He might have to bit Barney with all three of them, the East Side New York boy vs. the West Side of Chicago being sturdier about the chin than Terris was.

DILLINGHAM BASEBALL FAN

The writer had only a bowing acquaintance with the dapper and immaculate Charles B. Dillingham. But since he was one of the stead- iest and most loyal baseball fans our town ever knew, it is only right that some mention of his passing should be made on the sports pages.

For one long year after another, the famous producer went up and down the line with the Giants and Yankees. Rarely did he miss a ball game when he was in town and not too busy with his shows. Only George Cohan, perhaps, and the late Lotie Mann were more regular in their attendance at the ball parks.

Not so many weeks ago I was sitting with Ed Barrow in the office of the Yankees and he shoved across his desk a fine letter from Colonel Ruppert to Mr. Dil- lingham, inclosing a Yankee sea- son pass.

"Please do not mention this in the paper," said Ed.

I understood why he did not want anything said about it. All Broadway knew things had been breaking ace-deuce for Dillingham for too long a time.

And Monte Brice tells me about an incident that occurred when he was making the movie musical "Moonlight and Pretzels" in the Earl Carroll theater a year ago this past summer.

One evening while rehearsing a number he looked up and there was Mr. Dillingham sitting alone in the vacant theater. He went back to shake hands.

"You don't mind my being here, I hope," said C. B., after they had exchanged greetings.

"Of course not," said Brice, "it's an honor and a pleasure to have you here."

"I came," went on Dillingham, "because I was wondering if you could do me a small favor."

"If I can, I'll be only too glad," replied Brice.

"Well," went on Dillingham, "a girl who used to be in one of my shows called me the other day. She has been having a very hard time and she has a child to support. I was wondering if you couldn't find a little some- thing for her to do in your pic- ture?"

While it is the way it is on Broad- way. Those who have their names "painted" are usually too busy get- ting it to bother about anybody else when they're up there. It's when they come back—and most of them do come back—that they find time to try to do nice things for others.

CONNIE AS GRID COACH

Probably not even my oldest reader (I'm told I'm following 190 in November), remembers when Connie Mack was managing a professional football team, not that it was so terribly long ago, but that it was just one of those little known incidents in the life of the Sage of Shibe Park.

But back there at the break of the century, Connie was managing the Athletics football team, and among his backs was a left-hander by the name of Rube Waddell.

Rube didn't play much, but he played "at" the game and was a sort of grown mascot for the foot- ballers until one night in Pitts- burgh he all but shot Connie acci- dentally when a loaded revolver dropped out of his pocket in the lobby of a hotel.

Mr. Mack promptly decided that football was no game for Waddell to the view of Rube's moonlike phiz and sent him home in dis- grace. But there was no place for Rube to stay away from for the unbelievable Waddell, ere he took his gun and went hunting bigger game than Connie until it was time to go fourths with the ivory the following spring.

The "Old Scout" of 103rd street and Broadway has done a great job on and for the pro game. When you get this book you'll agree with me.

The chestnut colt had made his New England debut at Rockingham Park last Saturday, running fifth behind Advising Anna in the mile and a sixteenth Providence Handi- cap, but he was badly bumped and never had a chance.

But leaving, getting away in front at the start, he won by two lengths from Calumet Farm's Hadagal in 1:55 flat. The time bettered the old American mark of 1:53 3-5 set by the great Sir Barton in 1920.

Discovery's additional time was: 22, 47 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:37 3-5, 1:55.

Legal Profession Must Purge Its Ranks—Let the "Lawyers' Crusade" Go on!

CAN it be true that the lawyers of America are undertaking at last to clean up the legal profession?—and by "cleaning up" we mean DRIVING OUT THE CROOKS AND THE SHYSTERS.

It seems so!

The public recently has had several unprecedented indications of this delayed but commendable effort.

For example, the Philadelphia Bar Association, under the chancellorship of Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan, has instituted a movement to DISBAR ALL UNFIT PRACTITIONERS and to put a stop to "humiliating conditions" which, as the Saturday Evening Post says editorially, "Philadelphia, like nearly every other large city, has been tolerating."

In particular, the Philadelphia Bar Association has started "a thorough investigation of the partnership which apparently exists between the local crime ring and certain members of the bar."

The scandalous necessity for such an inquiry was urged upon the Philadelphia bar recently by President Judge Horace Stern, of that city, in a letter which said:

"I need not point out to you the distinction between a lawyer properly representing a person charged with the commission of crime, and a lawyer retained to defend persons IN CRIME THEREAFTER TO BE COMMITTED AS PART OF A REGULAR, CONTINUING, CRIMINAL BUSINESS.

"If such a disgraceful relationship exists between organized crime and members of the bar—and there would seem to be some reason to believe that it does—IT IS FOR THE BAR ITSELF to clean house and to put a stop to such practice."

Not only was the local bar association aroused to duty.

The district attorney's office also enlisted in the Philadelphia campaign, with the idea of CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS of lawyers found to be engaged in CRIMINAL PRACTICES as the hired accomplices of common criminals.

And what Philadelphia commenced has now a remarkable chance of becoming a NATION-WIDE campaign.

Last week, at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Milwaukee, distinguished LAWYERS gave attention as never before in the association's history to the notorious evils known to exist in the legal profession.

In his presidential address, Earle W. Evans bluntly told the assembled lawyers that the legal profession as a whole has been losing caste; that "the public seemingly lacks confidence in lawyers," and that the legal profession of the nation must "UNDERGO A THOROUGH AND CONSCIENTIOUS HOUSE-CLEANING."

Declaring that crime costs the country twelve thousand million dollars a year; that attempts to suppress crime are HAMPERED BY LAWYERS of "an offensive type whom all men condemn," and that HONEST LAWYERS must rid themselves of "the LAWYER-CRIMINAL, a social enemy of the lowest order," President Evans said:

"The public believes that we harbor and otherwise encourage crooked lawyers; and WE CANNOT ENTER A CONVINCING DENIAL OF THE CHARGE . . . We do know, and the public knows, that WE HAVE NOT TRIED very hard to PROTECT THE PUBLIC from the ravages of unworthy lawyers."

Of course, President Evans was inveighing chiefly against the lawyer-crooks who infest the criminal courts.

But at the same session Robert H. Jackson, assistant general counsel of the United States Treasury, spoke against "lobby" lawyers, who haunt public buildings, engaging in "professional misconduct" and collecting UNEARNED FEES from deluded clients under claims amounting to false pretenses.

MR. JACKSON said:

"If the bar as a whole regards THE RIGHT TO BE CROOKED as a PRICELESS POSSESSION to be defended against all regulation, the result will be that it will face a vexatious degree of control really needful for only a few rascals."

Now, if the lawyers of America will GO THROUGH with this crusade for justice and honesty, the public benefits will be enormous.

For when the LEGAL PROFESSION has cleaned itself up, you will find that our LEGISLATURES and our JUDICIARY have been cleaned up likewise—because the JUDICIARY is composed ENTIRELY, and the LEGISLATURES are composed mainly, of LAWYERS.

AND THE LAWYERS MUST GO THROUGH WITH IT —IN EVERY COMMUNITY.

As Earle W. Evans said, the campaign against lawyer-criminals must be "so general and so intense that the unexplained failure of ANY MEMBER OF THE PROFESSION to participate will constitute a SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCE against him."

College in Rectory

Necessity is ever the mother of invention. Hard times not only develop people's resourcefulness, but also they bring out their most unselfish qualities.

No better proof of this can be asked than the news from Connecticut, where the Rev. Delmar S. Merkle, rector of St. Mark's Church, Fairfield, has organized a college for boys whose families cannot afford to send them off to school this fall.

A former professor himself, the minister has gathered a faculty of clerics and laymen, all with teaching experience or experts in their fields, to conduct classes in his rectory.

The regular first-year college courses will be offered, starting September 17. Scholastic aptitude tests must be passed by prospective students just as at a regularly established school.

The only tuition fee will be a charge of $5 for the year. Other expenses of the school will be paid from contributions of public-spirited citizens of the county.

Teachers and contributors from the various towns in the county are to be congratulated for their fine spirit. It is to be hoped that the school will be successful. Also that the students will be able to go on to regularly established colleges for their more advanced work.

What Is a Life Worth?

We used to think that a human life had an immeasurable value, with its capacity for joy and love and service and growth.

We used to think that no expense was too great in the effort to save even a single life.

Therefore we gave our approval to hospitals and clinics and expensive experiments and errands of mercy by land and sea and air.

But now it seems that we must revise our standard of value.

A human life, if some of the auto drivers of Massachusetts know anything about it, is only worth the minute or so of time that is gained by speeding across a side street or recklessly rounding a corner or passing on a hill.

Well, the gangsters and the war-makers don't set a very high value on human life, either. Maybe they are right.

Maybe the rest of us have always been wrong.

Maybe we shouldn't get excited about the news of all the persons who have been killed by cars on our streets and highways. Maybe they didn't count for much!

Improve Your Block

As the Federal Housing Administration's plans gain momentum, more and more emphasis is being placed not on the improvement of a single home, but of a whole community.

This is a sound development because the value of an individual improvement gains in direct proportion to the bettered conditions of the whole neighborhood.

For example, if only one house in a run-down block is refurbished, its increased value will not be nearly as great as if every house in that block had been painted and renovated.

Civic-minded persons are therefore urged to think of their block, not just of their house. With a little co-operation, they can get together and devise many relatively inexpensive plans that will make their neighborhood better.

An ugly clutter of fences, for example, can be removed and replaced by attractive hedges. Architects, builders and painters can suggest many ideas. And the banks will be glad to help you transfer them from blue prints to realities.

Color for State Police

Those who frown on the bright, two-tone blue uniforms of the Massachusetts State Police will find no friend in Arlyn E. Barnard, head of the Maine Automobile Association.

Fewer traffic accidents would occur, he says, if highway policemen were uniformed in brash colors and placed in bright yellow cruiser cars, and adds:

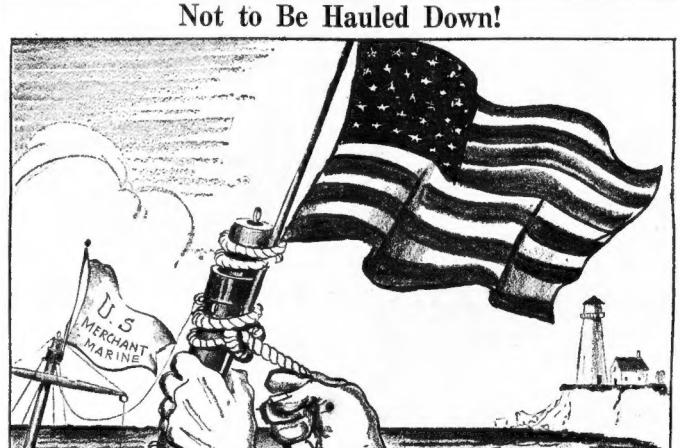
"A policeman on the road is worth two hidden in the bushes waiting for accidents to happen."

To back his contention, Barnard says that Michigan and Virginia have had signal success in reducing accidents by means of the color plan.

The psychology of the scheme is apparent to any thoughtful observer. No speeder "steps on it" with an officer in sight. The brighter the color, the longer and the farther a policeman will be visible.

With Death riding Massachusetts highways like a Hitler in a Ghetto, the idea is worth consideration here.

Not to Be Hauled Down!



As against Secretary Wallace's "pure theory" in favor of abandoning the American merchant marine and depending on foreign carriers, President Roosevelt has set forth in words of "pure reason" exactly why the merchant marine must be protected and developed.

To begin with, the President said, a merchant marine is a "form of insurance" to maintain our overseas trade if and when foreign wars drive foreign ships off the oceans.

And, finally, wherever we lack shipping of our own, foreign carriers have discriminated against our traders by rates and otherwise for the benefit of their own nations.

There is no rebuttal of these sound arguments.

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

Why Can't You "Get Out of Yourself?"

Whenever you're tired, or cross, or worried, people tell you to "get out of yourself." A queer expression, that—and an old one. Just what does "getting out of yourself" mean?

You think you know what it means. You think it means getting out of a mood—shaking off your anxiety and irritation and forcing yourself to be joyous and carefree for an hour or so. But "getting out of yourself" means much more than that. It touches mysteries, involves miracles, of which we rarely dream.

Elsie Robinson

"Get out of yourself." But what is Self? What is YOUR self? You think that it is that personality with which you were born—a certain combination of tastes and impulses which are yours, partly through inheritance, partly through training, partly through the effect of environment.

Something which Fate has fixed upon you as firmly as the bones within your flesh. But you're wrong!

THEY DID MATTER

YOUR SELF ISN'T SOMETHING THAT "JUST HAPPENED" TO YOU. It's something you chose to be! It is the result of those millions of choices and decisions and experiments and evasions which you have been making ever since you were a baby.

Most of those decisions were about trivial things. Most of them were made in your own mind and unknown to anyone else. And so you thought they "didn't matter."

But they did matter enormously. For each of those decisions helped to shape that Self which today bears your name. Each one of them left its certain mark upon you. And you are today what those decisions made you.

"But that sounds silly!" you snort. "Do you mean to say I'm bored and discouraged and nearly crazy with worry, today, because I chose a pink hair-ribbon instead of a blue one forty years ago?"

Or decided to spend my vacation in Yosemite instead of Chicago? What possible difference did it make what I wore at ten, or where I went at twenty?"

No difference. BUT YOUR ATTITUDE WHEN FACED WITH THOSE DECISIONS MADE A TREMENDOUS DIFFERENCE.

If you faced those "unimportant" decisions eagerly, bravely, confidently, elastically, and made quick work of them, your whole life benefited by that courage, determination and elasticity. If you faced them reluctantly, timidly, and either vacillated in making them or ducked them entirely—you thereby built a weaker, more cowardly character.

For we don't choose our characters and personalities in one swoop. We build them by countless small acts. We are truly, tragically, "what we wanted to be."

AS BAD AS EVER

And now, today, you're cross, bitter, discouraged. So your exasperated family or disgusted boss tell you to "get out of yourself!" And you try it. You go for a walk. Or to a show. Or off on a fishing trip.

You try to shake the mood that's spoiling everything. And, for a while, you seem to succeed. Then back it comes. Things are as bad as ever.

Things are as bad as ever because you haven't really tried to change them. It wasn't a mood that was spoiling everything. It was that SELF which caused the mood—the SELF you have built up so laboriously, through all the years. That Self has become a shell—a cell—and you are a prisoner in it.

You'll never be happy or free until you can GET OUT OF YOURSELF. But that doesn't mean getting out of a mood. It means getting out of an actual self—a deliberately chosen character.

And how can you get out of your own character? In exactly the same way you got into it. By going to work on the "little things that don't matter." By being brave instead of cowardly in the "unimportant" decisions no one ever sees you make—generous instead of jealous — sympathetic instead of intolerant — hopeful instead of pessimistic.

Remember that ancient torch song—"You Made Me What I Am Today—I Hope You're Satisfied?"

You made your SELF what it is today—stranger. But it's just your bad luck if you're satisfied.

AFTERWARD

When my soul from earth has flown
Grave this verse upon the stone:
"'Tis the garment that he wore Lying here and nothing more!"

Stay not here to sigh or weep;

'Tis not he who lies in sleep.
All the dewy grasses hide
Is the coat he tossed aside.

What in him you loved to see
Now has life eternally.
All that's here, and nothing more,
Is the coat his spirit wore."

Human Side of the News; 'Padre of Volcanoes'

By Edwin C. Hill

By now or nowabout, Bernard R. Hubbard, S.J., is back at California's Santa Clara university, getting ready to hold down the chair of geology in that excellent institution. As you probably know, Bernard R. Hubbard, S.J., is none other than that adventurous scientist, "The Glacier Priest," or as some call him, "The Padre of the Volcanoes."

He's the long, lean, hard-muscled, dark-complexioned chap who goes every year into the mysterious hinterland of Alaska to expose the secrets of the eternal glaciers and peer down into the living flame of active volcanoes. As a fellow Jesuit, Wilfrid Parsons, says of him, he's an exploring scientist who pays for his fun with some pretty hard knocks.

BACK HE COMES

Back he comes again to the further pursuit of his regular job after another thrilling time with his chosen students, and bringing news of a new glacier near the tip of the Alaska peninsula. When Father Hubbard goes to Alaska, adventure runs to meet him. On his recent expedition a giant brown bear nearly got him and was dropped in its tracks only a few feet from its prey.

He fought his way through torrential rainstorms, eighteen inches of water in three days; waded through flooded country, climbed peaks hitherto regarded as inaccessible, discovered a new crater as well as a new glacier, filled up several notebooks and generally had a grand time.

It is Father Hubbard, who tells us the thrilling tale of one of the most terrific volcanic explosions of all time, the blowing up of great Aniakchak Volcano which has a base a hundred miles in circumference in the central section of the Alaskan Peninsula. May 1, 1931, dawned clear and bright in the interior of Alaska. Winter had departed from the shore line and the snows had begun to retreat up the lower slopes of the mountains.

But winter still maintained its icy grip on the interior. The trapping season was over, and the handful of hardy men who seek their livelihood from the furs of the country were preparing their fishing boats for the summer run on Bering Sea.

TERRIFIC ERUPTION

Among them was Frank Wilson, one of the few white inhabitants of Meshik. He was scraping and caulking his boat when an exclamation of surprise called his attention to his little daughter Mabel playing in the sand near by.

She was pointing, in great excitement, at the snow peak of great Aniakchak, fifteen miles away. From the white snow a dense column of white steam was shooting miles high into the sky. Wilson noted the time, 10 a. m.

There were none of the preliminary warnings that go usually with volcanic explosions. No earthquake shook the ground, nor were any rumbles heard from the laboring giant. Merely the vast column of live steam. And then at 12 o'clock came the explosion, a terrific eruption.

A dense black cloud of incandescent gas and ashes shot up into the air more than 20,000 feet, spread out like a huge mushroom and then descended in a tremendous rain of debris.

Wilson and his family rushed to their cabin. Panic-stricken Aleuts fled in all directions, diving for shelter into any hole or refuge they could find. The earth shook and flame and smoke rose thousands of feet. Lava bombs hurtled through the clouds and burst like giant skyrockets. In the clouds lightning formed and stabbed downward through the murk in savage spear-thrusts.

Thunder added its din to the incessant bombardment of the explosions and to the crash of falling rocks torn from the sides of the mountain and hurled to its base.

NEAR TO HADES

It was the nearest thing to Hades, probably, that the eye of man ever looked upon. Until May 11 the eruption went on without interruption, and then came the final terrific explosion which shook the surrounding country and hurled into the air huge masses of melted rock and ashes, so thick in density as to make the day pitch-dark for several hours as far away as 60 miles from this old monster committing suicide.

Wilson, fleeing from the eruption, met Father Hubbard between Meshik and Bristol Bay and told him the dramatic story. Ashes fell over Alaska 300 miles distant from Aniakchak, and the thunder of the explosions was heard as far as 200 miles away.

Father Hubbard reached the wrecked volcano a few days after it quieted, climbing toward the crater rim, he found himself in a valley of death. Not a blade of grass or a bunch of moss showed anywhere in the all-encompassing desolation of ash and lava. Black cinders, still hot, crackled under the feet of the adventurous priest, but finally, after great hardship, he reached the rim of the crater and gazed down into the dreadful abyss.

So doing, Father Hubbard gazed into the Infernal regions, and abomination of desolation. Black walls, black floor, black water, deep black holes and black vents. No streams coursed through flower-strewn meadows.

No grassy slopes led upward to the eternal snow. Lovely lakes had been wiped out utterly, or were mudded-in swamps. And later Father Hubbard made his way perilously to still another blow-hole of vast size and again gazed down, like Dante, into hell.

The sight was terrifying. Black, ash-covered lava moved uneasily in the center of a hole three miles around. It came out of the tortured earth in the form of gas, as did the yellow sulphur, cooled into huge blocks weighing a ton or more, all of which, by their own weight, toppled back into the pool of fire and were once more melted and made incandescent by the incredible heat.

It is Father Hubbard who gives us this arresting description of Uncle Sam's most northerly possession:

"Wild, forbidding, and as yet mainly unexplored, the Alaska Peninsula presents a weird spectacle of scenic effects that seem so unreal, so different from anything else on earth, that after returning from this Alice-in-Wonderland region of terrible beauty one wonders whether one may not have been dreaming of another planet instead of seeing the one inhabited by mortal man."

Stars and Stripes

New flyer who is planning a flight into the stratosphere, should know that everybody who has tried that has had to come DOWN for air.
